INTRODUCTION.

A popular historian has said that the study of history "sets before us striking examples of virtue, enterprise, courage, generosity, patriotism; and, by a natural principle of emulation, incites us to copy such noble examples." We, of the present generation, know but little of the trials, fatigues, hardships, fears and anxieties, which our fathers and mothers of early New England days experienced and willingly endured, that they might establish a government and found a nation, where the privileges of civil and religious liberty, and the benefits of general education, should be the blessed inheritance of their posterity for all time.

Having been accustomed to the even temperature and mild winters of the British Isles, the abrupt change of location, with unavoidable exposure to the harsher climate and rigorous winters of New England, caused many of the delicate ones among the first settlers to waste rapidly away with consumption or other unlooked-for diseases, while even the most vigorous of the first one or two generations after immigration, being subjected to the unceasing toil and the perils incident to early settlements, rarely attained the age of three-score and ten. But they looked beyond the present with the affairs that concerned themselves only and comprehended the possibilities of the fardistant future, and with laudable self-sacrifice and persistent efforts amidst harassing discouragements, made such provision for the well-being of their descendants as their opportunities afforded. It was evidently a chief desire and great aim with them so to establish in the lives of those committed to their care, principles of piety, morality and virtue, and habits of industry, mental culture and economy, that they in their turn, and each succeeding generation, should, in the words of the Psalmist, "make them known to their children; that the generation to come might know them, even the children which should be born, who should arise and declare them to their children."

When it seemed certain that they were securing the germs of the blessings they had so fondly sought, they were sorely embarrassed by having their precious liberties curtailed, and were suddenly deprived of the privilege of having rulers of their own election, and obliged to submit to the arbitrary dictation of governors appointed from beyond the sea. Their best men were often demanded as soldiers, and required to take long and perilous marches through the unknown wilds of the forest, and were exposed to the dangers of camp and battlefield in distant parts of the land, in order to carry on wars for the crown of England; and then, as if this were not enough, they were burdened with taxes to defray the expenses of those wars. They were often in terror of midnight attacks, when their homes were liable to be reduced to ashes, and they or their families slaughtered by a foe more wily and treacherous in his nature, more cruel and unrelenting in his hate, than any previously known in history. They were obliged to work early and late with but little diversion, in order to wrest from a stern and unyielding soil, the products necessary for the comfortable maintenance of their several households; the numbers of whose members as compared with the size of some of the families of modern civilization, could our hardy ancestors be permitted to see the startling change, might well cause them to blush for their posterity and feel alarm for the future existence of their race. They would have spurned the practices followed by modern voluptuaries in the pursuit of case and pleasure. Constant bearing of life's heavy burdens, experience of trying hardships and the practice of sturdy virtues, enabled them to build the foundations of a race whose characteristics of energy, perseverance and general progress, have excited the admiration of the world. Although occasional personal misdemeanors and a few public acts, which might be cited, show that we must not extravagantly claim for all of them unexceptionable purity and integrity, or that as a body they always acted wisely and justly; yet, considering the state of society in England prior to their emigration, and the injustice and abuse to which they and their ancestors had in some cases been subjected, we can but be surprised that high moral principles were so generally exemplified in their lives, and that their public decrees toward those whom they regarded as propagators of error were so seldom characterized by vindictiveness. As well do the deeds of piety, patriotism and benevolence which they actually performed, as the rigid self-denials which they practised and the crushing hardships which they patiently endured, entitle them to our admiration. In seasons of danger to the body politic they voluntarily and promptly offered their time and services to relieve the community from the threatened perils. And taking a later and less general view, subsequent to the first century of settlement, after persistent industry united with manly energy and judicious management had won the smile of Providence in the accumulation of ample fortunes, we see, in several instances, a large proportion of those fortunes yielded up and benevolently and piously contributed for the promotion of education, morality and religion. It is a sacred duty that we, especially as their descendants, owe to such noble men and women as these, to preserve carefully the memory of their lives, that their posterity to the remotest generation, being incited by the "natural principle of emulation," may be led "to copy such noble examples."

"Phillips" a name spelled in a variety of forms, is of ancient and classical origin, being derived from the Greek, Philos-hippos, or horse lover. In Wales and other parts of Great Britain its use as a surname has continued for a long period, evidently for five hundred years, and perhaps much longer. It is said that "Phillipse" is Welsh and that "Phillips" is from Worcestershire. It is stated by good authority that the Watertown family of this name were of the "Phillips" of Worcestershire. Some are positive that all the English families of this name had their origin from Wales and subsequently spread over Great Britain. Several different ways have been employed in spelling, as Phillips, Phillips, Phillips, Phillips, and others, some of them so peculiar as hardly to be recognized as having a common origin.

Families and individuals of this name began to emigrate from the Old World at a very early date in the history of this country, as early as 1630, and some a little earlier, and locate at different points near the sea-coast, but more especially in New England. From that time to the present they have continued to multiply and spread, by natural causes and by emigration, until now they are to be found in every State from Maine to California; and those in this country who spell their name by the more common form of Phillips, are numbered by thousands.

It is now exceedingly difficult to establish the relation which existed between many of these earlier Phillipses or to trace out satisfactorily the several lines of their descendants. Of the family of Rev. George Phillips of Watertown, Mass., there have been at least ten generations. There may be some now of the eleventh, but if so, no notice of them has come to the writer. None of the first five generations are now living. The last one, probably, of the fifth generation died in 1865 at the great age of nearly 105 years. There are five divisions of this family so marked by long continued residence in particular localities that they might well be designated as distinctive branches. These are the Andover Branch, from Rev. Samuel Phillips who located in that town in 1711; the Boston Branch, from Hon. John Phillips who went there to live about 1718; the Brookhaven Branch, from Rev. Geo. Phillips who located in Brookhaven, Long Island, 1697; the MARBLEHEAD AND SALEM BRANCH, from Jonathan Phillips who removed from Watertown to Marblehead about 1719; the OXFORD BRANCH, from Joseph Phillips who went there from Watertown not far from 1725. It will perhaps be noticed that the Christian name Samuel occurs in nearly every generation of the Andover branch; while in the Oxford branch there is an almost entire absence of either of the names Samuel, Sarah or William. Some members of each of these branches might have been found living in or near the several towns from which the respective branches take their names, at any time during the last one hundred and fifty to two hundred years.

Some of the earliest progenitors of the New England families of this name of which the line of descent has not been fully traced appear to have been the following:

Nicholas Phillips (Deacon) of Weymouth, 1640, seems to have had a large family, and a large number of the name at the present day are doubtless his descendants. The recurrence of such names as Joshua, Richard, Benjamin, Caleb and Experience, goes to show that one branch of his family removed to the vicinity of Dighton, Mass., at an early day. Some who have given the subject attention are of the opinion that part of those of the name in the early history of Rhode Island were his descendants.

John Phillips was of Duxbury and Marshfield, 1638 to 1677 or later and probably had a large number of descendants; but the statement on page 123 that his family appears to include those given under Nos. 70 to 89 is found to be incorrect so far as it relates to Capt. John Phillips of Easton, page 135, who came probably from Weymouth prior to the year 1700, and whose apparent age would place his birth not far from the year 1670, giving so much ground for believing that he may have been the son, born June 21, 1669, of Nicholas Phillips of Weymouth, page 192.

John Phillips (Col.) of Charlestown, about 1655, had a large family and numerous descendants.

William Phillips of Boston, 1640, had descendants living about one hundred years later.

Henry Phillips of Boston, 1640, afterwards of Dedham, had descendants in the vicinity of Boston more than one hundred years later and appears to have had a numerous progeny.

James Phillips of Taunton, son, probably, of William, 1643, of same place, had children born from 1661 to 1675.

Andrew Phillips of, or near, Charlestown, married prior to 1659, had descendants living more than sixty years later. A recurrence of several names would lead to the conclusion that he was the ancestor of Ebenezer Phillips of Southboro, page 97, whose origin is involved in mystery, but nothing as yet found goes to prove the connection.

At the time of commencing this work, in 1877, it was the purpose of the compiler to include only the descendants of Joseph Phillips of Oxford, Mass., a grandson of Rev. George Phillips of Watertown; and it was only a few weeks before going to press that it was decided to include all that is embraced in these pages. But in the collection of material for completing the original design, considerable amount of records and interesting items of history of other families or branches of this name came into the possession of the compiler, and he was led to take in historical matter of families of the name apparently not connected with the Watertown family. Had it been known at the beginning how much was to be included, a still more extended research would have been made in some directions, and the arrangement might have been somewhat different.

That the genealogies given in this work are all correct can hardly be expected. Different individuals, in giving their recitals of the same event, sometimes make statements at variance with each other; sometimes they give different dates for the same event, and frequently the town records differ from those kept in families. These differences have at times made it a difficult matter for the compiler to decide which was to be received and which rejected; but in cases of doubt he has taken particular pains to arrive at what appeared to be strict truth. In some cases of a disagreement in dates, both dates are given. The transcriptions have all been carefully reviewed, and it is believed that each name and date, except a few in which errors were apparent, is given exactly as furnished to the compiler. Some of the incidents related are from oral statements by elderly but well-informed persons, some of whom long since passed away. Many have manifested a deep interest in the work, and kindly furnished whatever, in their possession, was likely to aid in its preparation. On the other hand, large numbers showed no interest at all; and of the many hundreds to whom inquiries were sent out, soliciting records and other historical information, not one half ever gave a response. This will account in some measure for the want of completeness in portions of the genealogies.

The writer takes pleasure in extending his sincere thanks to all who have kindly contributed genealogical matter for these pages. The number is so great that want of space forbids the mention of each by name. In the necessary correspondence a sort of letter acquaintance has been created, which, to say the least, will leave pleasant memories, and in some cases it is trusted has ripened into permanent friendship. Some have rendered special assistance in various ways and it would hardly be proper to close without giving them more than a general notice.

Early and liberal subscriptions from Daniel Phillips of Hartford, Conn., and Walter P. Phillips of New York City, without which this book could not have appeared in its present attractive form, entitle them to grateful acknowledgments. For some of the principal sketches acknowledgments are due to Mrs. E. W. Clark, Westboro, Mass., Mrs. J. H. Westgate, Malden, Mass., Mrs. Geo. B. Eaton, Jersey City, N. J., Israel Phillips, Greenfield, Mass., Dea. Charles C. Phillips, Greenfield, Abner S. Phillips, Bondville, Vt., Joseph Christie, Philadelphia, Penn., Geo. Bassett, Ashfield, Mass., Nelson Phillips, Black River, N. Y., Nathan P. Dodge, Council Bluffs, Ia., and Miss E. M. Phillips, late of Medway, Mass.; also to the authors and publishers of numerous publications from which miscellaneous extracts have been frequently taken. Perhaps the greatest amount of material drawn from any one work is from Dr. Henry Bond's Genealogies and History of Watertown, a work of great value, in which a large number of New England families may trace their pedigree. The descendants of Rev. Samuel Phillips of Rowley, 1651, are given in the following pages mainly as found in that work. It will be seen that the New England Historical and Genealogical Register, a work which no writer of genealogies should be without, has contributed a great number of items, some of them quite essential in making out the proper connections. Obligations are gladly acknowledged to the few who have generously agreed to insert portraits of themselves or friends at their own expense. Grateful acknowledgments are due to Mr. E. M. Barton, the cordial and communicative librarian of the American Antiquarian Society, for his helpful suggestions and oft-repeated permission to examine the books of the library. The printing has been executed at the press of Charles Hamilton, and the neat and symmetrical arrangement of the typographical work is due to the watchful oversight of Mr. Benjamin J. Dodge, a printer of long experience, the present results of which well meet our anticipations. The lithotype portraits are from the works of the Lithotype Printing Co., Gardner, Mass., and many thanks are due to their faithful and affable agent, Mr. Frank Lawrence of Worcester, for his repeated and patient efforts under all circumstances, sometimes perplexing, to secure unexceptionally satisfactory work. For the steel engraving of Hon. Samuel Phillips thanks are due to Mr. Geo. P. Smith of Boston, agent of the Congregational Publishing Society, for permission to use the plate in their possession. The autographs are printed from the neatly and faithfully executed work of Messrs. Kyes & Woodbury of Worcester.

The following arrangement is by families and sub-families rather than by generations, though the number of the generation is shown by the Roman letters at the left. Each special family is numbered at the head, and for convenience in reference, these numbers are continuous through the book. The name of each family head is printed in bold type, and when the children of any married daughters are included, their surnames are given in Italics. The fragmentary records at the close of the book are given in the hope that they may assist some in retracing their family line, and enable them to make the proper connection with other branches. The abbreviations most used are, b. for born, bap. baptized, d. died, m. married, dau. daughter, ch. child or children, res. residence.

The number of names in the following genealogies is upwards of three thousand.

Whatever the defects of this work, and the compiler is aware of many, he trusts that he has preserved a few interesting, and perhaps not altogether unimportant, historical items, as well as some links in the chain of genealogical succession which might otherwise have been lost. There is still a wide field for genealogical research among the families of this name. To aid and encourage any who may be willing to correct errors or supply omissions which come to their notice, and to the end that correct and more complete genealogies of the several families of this name may be produced at some future time, a copy of this work with a large number of blank pages interleaved will be deposited in the rooms of the New England Historic Genealogical Society, Boston, Mass., and letters of correction forwarded to that address will receive proper attention. It is hoped that all who can will avail themselves of this opportunity to assist in producing, as nearly as it can be done, perfectly correct and complete genealogies.

The compiler cannot expect to regain pecuniary remuneration for his labors, his experience being somewhat similar to that of other genealogists who have asserted at the close, that had they known the amount of labor involved they never would have attempted the task; but if what is here given shall only cause those of the name into whose hands it may come to preserve carefully all items of family history and lead some one in each of the main branches of the name, parts of which are to be found in this book, to work out a complete genealogy of his own branch, one great object of its production will have been accomplished; and the labor will not have been lost if any are led to emulate the benevolence, the devotion to duty, the patriotism or the piety of the worthy examples found recorded on the following pages.

OF WATERTOWN, MASS., 1630.

"A Phillips crossed the water with John Winthrop, and from him descended a long line of ministers, judges, governors, and councillors—a sterling race, temperate, just, and high-minded."—Writer in Harper's.

No. 1.

(I.) Rev. George Phillips, the first minister of Watertown, Mass., son of Christopher Phillips of Rainham, was born about 1593, at Rainham, St. Martins, near Rougham, in the hundred or district of Gallow, County of Norfolk, England.* He graduated as B. A. from Gonville and Caius College, Cambridge, 1613, and received the degree of M. A., 1617. "He gave early indications of deep piety, uncommon talents, and love of learning, and at the University distinguished himself by his remarkable progress in learning, especially in theological studies for which he manifested an early partiality." He was settled for a time in the ministry in Suffolk Co., but suffering from the storm of persecution which then threatened the nonconformists of England, he determined to leave the mother country and take his lot with the Puritans.

He embarked for America, April 12th, 1630, in the Arbella, with his wife and two children, as fellow-passengers with Gov.

^{*} The parish of Rainham was visited in May, 1875, by Henry A. Phillips, now of Boston, who found that none of this name were living in that place, but ascertained that some were living in an adjacent town.

Winthrop* and Sir Richard Saltonstall, and arrived at Salem, June 12th. Here his wife soon died and was buried by the side of Lady Arbella Johnson, both, evidently, being unable to endure the hardship and exposure incident to a tedious ocean voyage. †

He soon located in Watertown, and without delay was settled over the church in that place which was called together in July.

At the Court of Assistants, Aug. 23, 1630, it was "ordered that Mr. Phillips shall have allowed him 3 hogsheads of meale, 1 hogsh of malte, 4 bushells of Indean corn, 1 bushell of oatmeale, halfe an hundred of salte fish." Another statement from the same source says, "Mr. Phillips hath 30 ac of land graunted him vpp Charles Ryver on the South side." ! His first residence was burnt before the close of the year. There is a tradition that his later residence is still standing "opposite the ancient burial ground, back from the road." §

He continued to be the pastor of this church, greatly respected and beloved, till his death fourteen years after his arrival. He died at the age of about fifty-one years, July 1, and was buried July 2, 1644. "He was the earliest advocate of the Congregational order and discipline. His views were for a time regarded as novel, suspicious and extreme, and he, with his ruling elder, Mr. Richard Brown, stood almost unaided and alone, until the arrival of Mr. John Cotton, in family maintaining what was and

^{*} Before the final embarkation which had been considerably delayed, Gov. Winthrop says, in a letter to his son, John Winthrop:

[&]quot;From aboard the Arbella, riding before Yarmouth, April 5, 1630. Yesterday we kept a fast aboard our ship and in the Talbot. Mr. Phillips exercised with us the whole day, and gave very good content to all the company, as he doth in all his exercises, so as we have much cause to bless God for him."

⁺ It cannot be thought egotistical for one who does not trace his origin to this Mrs. Phillips, to say that there is now little or nothing from which to form an opinion of her except the lives and characters of her noble descendants; and judging from these, it is reasonable to conclude that she was a woman of high social standing, lofty moral virtue and strong intellect.

[†] Mass. Records, Vol. 1, pp. 102, 730.

[§] This old house whose solid oaken frame is said to have been brought over by Sir R. Saltonstall, has a projecting second story, partly concealed by a modern piazza, and stands well back from the street. Externally there is nothing to indicate great age, but its interior retains many marks of antiquity. It formerly had three porticos, which have been removed from its front, and a steep roof which has given place to one of much less altitude.—Hist. of Middlesex County, p. 450. S. A. Drake.

still is, the Congregationalism of New England. It is not now easy to estimate the extent and importance of the influence of Mr. Phillips in giving form and character to the civil and ecclesiastical institutions of New England." His name appears in the list of those who were admitted freemen. May 18, 1631, which is the earliest date of any such admission.

His inventory amounted to £550 2s. 9d., a sum, allowing for the difference in commercial value between that time and the present, equivalent, at least, to seven or eight thousand dollars. His library was valued at £71 9s. 9d.

He married (1st) a daughter of Richard Sargent. He married (2d) Elizabeth ——, probably a widow of Capt. Robert Welden. She died in Watertown, June 27, 1681. In speaking of his descendants, the writer quoted at the beginning of this record says:

"In Brechin Hall at Andover, the library of the theological school, in the great halls of the academies at Andover and Exeter, and in Memorial Hall at Harvard College, one may see hanging upon the walls portraits of one and another man and woman of this family, which belongs among the untitled nobility of New England, representing the best element of life there—not that which always dwells in the brightest glare of publicity, but that which directs and shapes the current of public opinion."

(II.) Rev. Samuel Phillips (son of George, of Watertown: No. 1,) was born in England, 1625, probably at Boxstead, in the County of Suffolk; grad. at Harv. Coll., 1650; settled in Rowley in 1651, as colleague of Rev. Ezekiel Rogers. "He was highly esteemed for his piety and talents, which were of no common order, and he was eminently useful, both at home and abroad." He married in Oct., 1651, Sarah Appleton, born in Reydon, Eng., 1629, dau. of Samuel Appleton.* He died Apr., 22, 1696, "greatly beloved and lamented," and his widow died July 15, 1714. Her funeral sermon was preached by her grandson, Rev. Samuel Phillips of South Andover, in which he says, "She was an early seeker of God, and spent much of her time daily in reading the word and in prayer. She took care of her children's souls. She was always humble and penitent, and as she lived, so she died, depending on Christ for righteousness and salvation." Their remains repose in the ancient burying-ground at Rowley. Some of their descendants have been among the most distinguished of New England people for their intellectual talents, piety, benevolence and public services. There have been seven Samuels in this line in direct succession, with the exception of a John between the fifth and sixth, and all since the first two were residents or natives of Andover. The seventh and last was recently eashier of the Maverick Nat. Bank, Boston.

He was the minister of the church at the South Parish, the present "Old South Church," Andover, for sixty years, where he commenced to preach in 1710, and was ordained Oct. 17, 1711, the same day the church was organized. Here he continued till his death, June 5, 1771. "In his individuality, simplicity, decision, energy, strength, and pristine hardiness of character, he abated nothing from the spirit of his worthy ancestors. He was, like them, also a model of industry, and frugality, and resolute self-restraint, and order in all that he did. (V.) Hon. Samuel Phillips (son of Samuel and Hannah: No. 4,) was born Feb. 13, 1715; grad. Harv. Coll., 1734; was engaged for some time in teaching a grammar school, but he had a natural taste and rare fitness for mercantile and other business pursuits, into which he soon entered with zeal and a determination to succeed. His natural sagacity and deep foresight, strengthened by a long and varied experience in different departments of business life, gave him confidence and insured the success which enabled him in after life to perform the acts that have caused his name to be associated with works of usefulness and beneficence. He was extensively engaged in the manufacture of gunpowder at the time of the Revolution, and for this he erected an expensive mill, which in 1778 was destroved by an explosion in which there was a loss of life of three persons. "In 1788, he built a paper-mill, which was carried on by Phillips and Houghton. He was often the representative of Andover, and member of the Executive Council before the Revolution, and in the Revolution was a staunch whig; was many years a civil magistrate, discharging the duties thereof with the most exemplary fidelity. Such were the sternness and precision of his manners, always frowning on vice and disorder, that they did not contribute to his popularity. Early habits of exactness and economy enabled him to accumulate a large estate, much of which he appropriated to the public good."* The crowning act of his life, that which more than anything else causes his memory to be held in grateful and perpetual remembrance, that which makes hundreds of professional, and other learned men his beneficiaries, was the part he performed as founder of the Academy at Andover. In this, however, he acted in connection with his brother, Hon. John Phillips of Exeter, N. H., afterwards sole founder of Phillips Exeter Academy, to whom is perhaps due an equal share of the honor, and at the suggestion of his son Samuel, known as Judge Phillips, to whom is to be accredited the further honor, that he conceived the original design, worked out the plan, and drew up the constitution. The School was established April 1, 1778, the two brothers having given for the purpose one hundred and forty-one acres of land in Andover, two hundred acres in Jaffrey, N. H., and five thousand dollars in money. "The lands they directed to be let out on proper terms, the money to be put on interest on good security, and the profits to be forever appropriated and expended for the support of a public free school or academy, in the South Parish of Andover." † The school was opened with twenty scholars, on the 28th of April, 1778, in a joiner's shop, purchased from the funds subscribed; and thus, Phillips Academy, known at first as Phillips School, had a practical beginning. In speaking of the relations of these three men to the two academies, a writer before quoted says: ‡

"The three men—and the older ones especially were men of sound judgment, who moved cautiously, and were not led away by any blind enthusiasm—together planned the enterprise, determined the locality, and took the necessary steps to bring the school into active existence. The combined gifts of these and other members of the Phillips family for the endowment of the academy amounted, in round numbers, to one hundred thousand dollars, and for half a century it was under the fostering care of some member of the family. Phillips Academy at Andover, was incorporated by an act of the Legislature in 1780, being the first academy so incorporated in America. Six months later. Dr. John Phillips, of Exeter, secured the incorporation of Phillips Exeter Academy. Thus these three men were founders of the two schools; and though the sums bestowed, when measured by the standard of more modern gifts, do not cause astonishment, when compared with what others were doing at that time, both in America and in England, they are simply magnificent. It was an act of faith, of strong will and high purpose, and the spirit which underlay the design is embodied in the elaborate constitution which serves for both schools. The present school building replaces one that was destroyed by fire. It stands near the top of a hill which is crowned by the buildings occupied by the theological seminary of the Congregationalists, established in 1808. We mention it here because it has an organic connection with the academy, the two institutions being under the same board of trustees, the younger having sprung from the loins of the elder, partly as the consummation of a purpose originally formed by the founders of the academy, partly as the solution of a difficulty which had arisen when the incorporation of the theological seminary had been sought. It is plain, too, that the academy is influenced in many ways by the presence of the seminary. Friendships spring up between the older and younger men, and the two institutions help to correct each other. The fact of the theological school as organically connected with the academy has served in many ways to deepen the religious character of the academy and to identify it more closely with the religious denomination with which it is affiliated."

He married July 11, 1738, Elizabeth Barnard, daughter of Theodore Barnard of Andover, and gr. dau. of Rev. Thomas Barnard of North Andover, who died 1718. By this marriage with an only child, the real estate at North Andover, formerly owned by the Barnard family, became the homestead which has been retained in the Phillips family for so many succeeding generations. The store earried on by Mr. Phillips in that place was opened in a part of the same house occupied by the family. He died Aug. 21, 1790, aged 75. She died Nov. 29, 1789, aged 71. "Her letters are very interesting, and show her to have been a woman of great piety and strong religious views." Their epitaph contains the following words: "This pair were friends to order in the Family, Church and Commonwealth; Examples of Industry and Economy, and patrons of learning and religion." (V.) Hon. John Phillips (son of Samuel and Hannah: No. 4,) was born Dec. 27, 1719; grad. Harv. Coll., 1735. He taught in public schools in Andover, Exeter and other places, after which he had a private Latin School in Exeter. He fitted himself for the ministry, and received a call from the church in Exeter, but for some reason relinquished all plans for preaching and entered extensively into mercantile life. He was a justice of the peace, a trustee of Dartmouth College for twenty years, from which he received the degree of LL.D. in 1777, "and founded and endowed in that College, the Phillips Professorship of Theology." He "was authorized to be, in some singular cases, one of the Judges of the Superior Court." In his business he was eminently successful, and accumulated a large fortune, all of which he devoted to benevolent objects. He gave liberally with his brother for the founding of Phillips Academy, Andover, in 1778, and in 1789, gave it the further sum of twenty thousand dollars, "for the virtuous and pious education of youths of genius and serious disposition." He bequeathed, by his last will, one-third of all the estate of which he died possessed, "for the benefit more especially of charity scholars, such as may be of excelling genius and good moral character, preferring the hopefully pious, and for the assistance of youths liberally educated, designed for the ministry, while studying Divinity under the direction of some eminent Calvinistic Minister of the Gospel, until a professor of Divinity, able, pious, and Orthodox, should be supported in this Academy, or at Exeter, in New Hampshire, or in both." It was this purpose of the founders, of securing, permanently, instruction in Theology, which led, about thirty years later to the founding of the Andover Theological Seminary.

He was the founder of the Academy in Exeter. In 1781, he "secured the incorporation of Phillips Exeter Academy from the New Hampshire Legislature, giving to the school in life and by bequest property amounting at the time to about sixty-five thousand dollars, but now, under admirable management, greatly enhanced in value." In speaking of his acts in connection with this institution, a writer before quoted says: "Phillips Exeter Academy has its own history and characteristics quite independent of Andover. It is almost wholly the child of Dr. John Phillips. . . . Dr. Phillips was one of the trustees at Andover from its first organization till his death, and for the last five years of his life president of the board. His endowment of Exeter thus was an act in generous emulation of his own beneficence. The wise provision which he made for the support of the school, and the care exercised by those in charge of the endowment, have given to the Academy a wholesome independence, so that it occupies to-day a position of self-reliance and integrity, having funds sufficient for its support irrespective of its receipts from tuition fees. During the century which has nearly closed since its incorporation it has had, until recently, but three principals in succession. Dr. Benjamin Abbot, the former of these, graduated at Harvard in 1788, and immediately went to Exeter as principal. The choice of this man hints at one distinction between Andover and Exeter. Dr. John Phillips, like his brother and nephew, was a firm adherent to the old school of

New England orthodoxy. He was also a man of deep humility and large-mindedness. He saw in Benjamin Abbot, an Exeter youth, the qualities which constituted a wise teacher, and he chose him to the place, although their theological preferences were at variance,—Abbot belonging to the new school which in process of time became organized Unitarianism. To measure Dr. Phillips's liberality, one must needs place himself among his contemporaries, and not among his descendants. Not only did Mr. Phillips make this appointment, but two of the trustees originally chosen by himself, and three others chosen during his lifetime, held theological opinions opposite to his own. The connection with Harvard University has always been a close one, and no other school in the country, save the Boston Latin School, has sent so large a number of students to Cambridge, while the standard of scholarship has been of the highest. The largest proportion of boys at Exeter has Harvard in view, and the reputation for scholarship which Exeter enjoys at Harvard has been unbroken for nearly a century."

He married (1st) Mrs. Sarah (Emery) Gilman, dau. of Rev. Mr. Emery, and widow of Nathaniel Gilman. He m. (2d) Mrs. Elizabeth (Dennet) Hale, dau. of Hon. E. Dennet of Portsmouth, N. H., and widow of Dr. Hale. He died Apr. 21, 1795, aged 75. No children.

(VI.) Hon. Samuel Phillips (son of Samuel and Elizabeth: No. 5,) commonly known as Judge Phillips, was born Feb. 7, 1750; grad. Harv. Coll., 1771; a member of the Provincial Congress at Watertown, 1775; Lieut.-Governor. He was the only heir to a large estate; but with a spirit of heroic self-sacrifice, he prevailed on his father to divert the property, which would legally fall to him, to the founding of the Academy at Andover. And it is to this self-sacrificing spirit, his benevolent heart, his desire to promote the education and good morals of the youth in his community, and check the growth of vice which he saw spreading with the advance of civilization, by the establishment, in his native town, of a permanent school worthy of the Commonwealth in which he lived. that the institution owes its existence. A long distance in advance of the people of his day, his deep and far-seeing mind conceived the original design, and he cautiously, deliberately and wisely drafted the constitution, now in service for both this and the Exeter Academy. "This instrument, with its multitudinous emendations, erasures, and additions, bears witness to the minute care with which the founders sought to formulate the principles of the schools. No one can read this paper without perceiving its weight and perspicuity. It was formerly, and perhaps now is, read yearly at the meetings of the board of trustees, and drew from one member, who had sat on the board for forty years, the remark that its language seemed to him more like inspiration than any thing else except the Bible. The constitution, while defining the courses of study and discipline, the duties of trustees and masters-not omitting to caution the trustees against extravagant entertainment at their yearly dinnerlays great emphasis on the conduct of the students, and the means to be taken for education in morality and religion, declaring that 'above all, it is expected that the master's attention to the disposition of the minds and morals of the youth under his charge will exceed every other care; well considering that though goodness without knowledge (as it respects others) is weak and feeble, yet knowledge without goodness is dangerous, and that both united form the noblest character, and lay the surest foundation of usefulness to mankind." **

"Samuel Phillips was an extraordinary man; but it is difficult to give, at this day, a just expression of his character. The religious and moral element in it were mixed so intimately, and yet so unaffectedly, with the business of the world and the habits of active life, that he seemed to be a perfect embodiment of the Christian statesman, scholar, and philanthropist. . . . I have never met, through my whole life, with an individual in whom the spirit of christianity and of good-will to mankind were so naturally blended with an indomitable energy and enterprise in active life. He was a leader in the church, a leader in the State; the young loved and listened to him, the old consulted and deferred to his advice. In his capacity for business, there was, as it were, an universality or ubiquity. In the town, in the Senate, in the courts of justice, in committees of the legislature, as a referee in cases of great importance, in all other associations or affairs of business, his influence was, as far as was possible in respect of any one man, paramount. For twenty years he was a member, and for fifteen years president, of the Senate of the State, at a period when Statesmen were not made out of every sort of wood. He was judge of the Essex Court of Common Pleas, a member of every important committee, on like occasions a referee, and, at the same time, owned and took a general superintendence of two stores, one at Andover, another at Methuen, of a saw-mill, a grist-mill, a paper-mill, and a powder-mill on the Shawshine, giving to each a sufficient and appropriate share of his oversight; with a spirit subdued by the predominancy of the religious sentiment, he was as earnest, active and indefatigable in this multitude of his engagements, as though this world was everything." *

"He was religious in study, in trade, in neighborly kindness, in domestic life, in politics, in every civil office, and in his zeal to promote learning, as well as in public worship or public charities. It was emphatically a religious institution which he was intent upon establishing; a religious vitality which he sought to breathe into all education within its atmosphere. . . . Thus he was intensely methodical and careful. Any one of his hundreds of manuscripts now extant, taken up at random, would be an iliustration of this trait. He erased, he interlined, he changed the collocation of words or paragraphs, he put in after-thoughts and side-thoughts, in a common family letter, with as much painstaking as in the draft of a State paper. In writing the most familiar communications to his son or his wife, he would copy, or give an apology for not copying, as if he would not consent to do anything which he was not anxious to do well; and the same scrupulous exactness was shown by him through the whole circuit of his labors, not more as a habit than as a purpose. . . . So, too, he was a prodigy of activity: not of haste and bustle, but of rapid, effective labor, in a quiet, unruffled spirit. His equilibrium was one secret of his momentum. Serene and sunny in temperament, he sang with the morning and evening birds. Men everywhere said, 'he is too busy,' 'he will soon be spent,' but he heard them not; work had a charm for him—any work, all work, if so be it were only good. He cherished a special fondness for the young. Companion of Statesmen as he was, and a proverb for his gravity, he was never more in his element than when conversing with a little child, or dropping his goodly maxims, like the gentle dew, into the heart of some listening youth." *

His business very often took him to Boston; and it was his habit after the close of the fatiguing labors of the day in that place, to mount his horse and ride to Andover, arriving at home about midnight. His friends remonstrated against this imprudence, but he gave them little heed, feeling that all available time should be devoted to useful labor. This exposure of his health, which was never very firm, with constant and incessant application to the extensive round of his business duties, doubtless laid the foundation, as is almost invariably the case under like circumstances, for the physical troubles which terminated his days of great usefulness, when not much past what is usually considered middle life. He left by will, four thousand dollars to be added to the fund for maintaining instruction in divinity in connection with the Andover Academy. Although his father, Hon. Samuel Phillips the elder, in connection with the brother, Dr. John Phillips, of Exeter, is regarded, and not improperly, as founder of Phillips Academy on account of his magnificent life-gifts and bequests; yet, to style Hon. Samuel Phillips the younger, as the founder of that institution, while doing no injustice to his worthy parent or liberal-minded uncle, is but yielding to him the honor to which he is justly entitled. In the connection of the two Samuels, father and son, with the establishment of Phillips Academy it is difficult to separate them. They were considerably associated with each other in the pursuits of life, and in the accomplishment of their grand design they acted in harmony. - (V.) Hon. William Phillips (son of Samuel and Hannah: No. 4,) was born July 6, 1722. The following brief sketch, given in Bond's Watertown, shows something of his life and character: "At the age of fifteen years he went to Boston, and became an apprentice to Edward Bromfield, Esq., a highly respectable merchant of that town, son of Hon. Edward Bromfield, for many years one of his Majesty's Council in the Province of Massachusetts Bay, and a great grandson of Rev. John Wilson, the first minister of Boston. At the termination of his apprenticeship he married, June 13, 1744, o. s., Abigail Bromfield, eldest daughter of his late master, and engaged in mercantile pursuits, in which he was very successful. By this marriage a grt.-gr. son of the first minister of Watertown was united with a grt.-gr. dau. of the first minister of Boston. was for many years a deacon of the Old South Church, and was repeatedly elected representative and State senator. 'He took a decided and active part in the proceedings which preceded and attended the Revolution; was on many of the committees appointed by the town of Boston in those trying times, and often contributed liberally of his estate to promote the measures which issued in the establishment of our independence.' He was one of the committee sent to demand of Gov. Hutchinson that the tea should be sent back to England; was rejected as a Councillor by Gov. Gage; was a member of the Convention for framing the Constitution of the Commonwealth, and that of adopting the Constitution of the United States. Upon the outbreak of the Revolution, he moved his family to Norwich, Conn., where they remained while the British had possession of Boston, occupying the Arnold mansion, the same house in which the traitor, Benedict Arnold, was born." No. 10.

(VI.) Lieut. Gov. William Phillips (son of William and Abigail: No. 9,) was born March 30, 1750; of Boston; deacon of the Old South Church, representative, and, from 1812 to 1823, Lieut.-Governor; from 1804 until his death in 1827, president of the Massachusetts Bank; presidential elector at large in 1820 when the vote of the State was cast for Mr. Monroe. To the already very liberal endowments of Phillips Academy, Andover, he added the sum of fifteen thousand dollars, and gave ten thousand dollars to Andover Theological Seminary. His generous gifts, distributed among about a dozen worthy objects, amounted to sixty-two thousand dollars.

"He came into possession of an ample fortune, to the management of which, and to the duties of his family and of friendship, to the service of the public, and to deeds of benevolence, he was thenceforth chiefly devoted. He was eminently a domestic man, fond of retirement, and of the society of his family and intimate friends. Yet he was not averse to the calls of public duty." The Rev. Dr. Wisner in preaching his funeral sermon said: "Scarcely a measure has been adopted or an association formed in this city and vicinity for the improvement of the physical, the intellectual, the moral or the spiritual condition of men, which has not received his co-operation and liberal support."

He married Sept. 13, 1774, Miriam Mason, born June 16, 1754, 3d dau. of Hon. Jonathan Mason of Boston. She died May 7, 1823, "greatly lamented." He died Saturday evening, May 26, 1827. Children:

Dus Mally

the Cambridge Law School, 1833; LL. B., 1834. He was gifted with intellectual talents and powers of eloquence which might have made him the foremost jurist and greatest lawyer of his time, but he gave up all hope of popularity or personal emolument from the practice of law, and made it his exclusive life work to plead, on the public rostrum and at every favorable opportunity, the cause of the oppressed, of every nation, creed and color. Sympathy with the classes whose cause he advocated led him to give freely of his means to the poor and distressed. It is said that no really needy and deserving man or woman ever appealed to him in vain; yet, his gifts were bestowed "so silently that no records remain on earth save in the hearts who love him." The following extracts give a very brief but clear portrayal of his life and character.

"Especially may the colored men rejoice that it pleased God to raise up in their behalf this inspired advocate of their inalienable rights, this terrible denunciator of their wrongs, this sincere sympathizer with their sufferings, this brave, true, stalwart friend. Their rights vindicated before the world. their wrongs wiped out, their sufferings soothed and healed, their race set free, enfranchised, educated, elevated, long will the colored race remember—how can they ever forget—their debt of gratitude to Wendell Phillips, to whom was due, as much as to any man on earth, this revolution in their lot. Not to the needs of his own country alone could Wendell Phillips limit his sympathy. The whole world had no wrong which did not set his soul on fire, to hate it always and abate it if he could. The terrible evils of intoxication led no man to be a stronger advocate of prohibition than Wendell The rights and interests of the working classes found in him a devoted friend. His intense earnestness carried conviction home to his hearers, his tenderness touched their hearts with irresistible sympathy, his pathos moved them to tears, his vehemence carried them on with contagious fire. his commanding presence filled them with respect, his simplicity and directness and almost absence of manner left them in doubt whether art were perfect or wholly absent. . . . Gifted by nature with a voice of exquisite smoothness, sweetness, flexibility and grace, and yet of wonderful power when roused in some great cause, the whole man grew instinct with the fire and force of impassioned oratory; and he swept his audience almost at his will, yet always without apparent effort, through the varying emotions which he sought to stir. Strong faith and deep piety marked his walk through life. His fellowcitizens have always respected him for every domestic virtue, and for a grandly stoical simplicity of life. Full of the generous spirit of self-sacrifice, seeking no public honor, devoting his life and his great powers to the cause of the oppressed even to his own great loss, standing firm against any and all injustice like the rugged hills of his native State, volcanic in his outbursts of wrath against oppression, Wendell Phillips stands as the strongest type of the fearless, uncompromising intolerant New England reformer."*

"No one had probably addressed so many audiences or charmed so many ears and fired so many breasts by his wonderful eloquence. . . . His first appearance as an orator was at a meeting in Faneuil Hall in 1837, called to protest against the cruel murder of Elijah P. Lovejoy at Alton, Ill., for publishing an anti-slavery paper. James T. Austin, attorney general, made an apologetic speech, condemning Lovejoy and almost justifying the mob for his murder. Then Wendell Phillips fired with a righteous indignation, mounted the platform amidst objections and efforts to suppress him, and poured forth a torrent of burning eloquence. This young lawyer, without experience and without a name in his profession, met and vanquished, routed and annihilated the official chief of the bar of Massachusetts. His eloquence was not of the grand style, majestic and imposing like that of Webster, with solemu periods and elaborate rhetoric. It was impetuous, swift and scathing, but with the beauty of a noble simplicity, a clear, trumpet-like voice, manner and gesture full of force and grace. Throughout his life his habits and manners were those of a patrician, kindly, neither arrogant nor obtrusively affable, but with a dignified reserve which commanded some measure of deference from all who came into contact with him. He was the greatest orator and agitator of his time, and as such he did a work so great, and so associated his name with a reform whose influence on the destinies of mankind cannot be overrated, that his failings may well be and doubtless will be forgotten, and his name will live in honor." †

^{*} Report, accepted Feb. 6, 1884, of committee appointed by Massachusetts Legislature.

[†] Massachusetts Spy, Feb. 8, 1884.

Some of his most greatly admired lectures, such as "Lost Arts" and "Daniel O'Connell," it is said, were never written. The first of these was repeatedly delivered for thirty years without losing its freshness; and his efforts in preparing the other, which he did not expect would gain a reputation, consisted in getting together "material enough to enable him to talk an hour on the subject he had in hand."

He married, Oct. 12, 1837, Ann Terry Greene, dau. of Benjamin Greene of Boston. There is a little story told, on pretty good authority, concerning their marriage. She was to attend a convention in Albany and Mr. Sumner was expected to act as her escort; but he being unable to go, Mr. Phillips accepted the trust "and lost his heart to her before he got back." After several unsuccessful efforts to gain an interview, she being in feeble health, he at last succeeded, having "almost broke his way to her and offered her his hand. She said she would never marry a man unless he would swear eternal enmity to slavery; but it was not necessary for Mr. Phillips to take that oath - he had already sworn it in his heart. So they were married." To his wife, who was always an invalid, he was chivalrously devoted, regulating his entire life by affection and consideration for her, and his best acts he ascribed to her influence. He always resided in Boston with the exception of one year in Florence. He died Saturday evening, Feb. 2, 1884, at fifteen minutes past six, after a short but painful illness. Two days before his death, during a brief interval of rest, after an agony of pain, he said to his physician, "I have no fear of death; I am willing to die to-day as well as any time, but for my poor wife." About an hour before he breathed his last, on reviving from a fainting spell, he said, "I'm dying; I'm dying." He did not rally, but continued to sink slowly and passed away "as quietly as if he was just going to sleep." He left no children.

OXFORD BRANCH OF THE WATERTOWN FAMILY.

No. 20.

(III.) Joseph Phillips (son of Theophilus and Mary: No. 19,) born Dec. 4, 1702. He married Ruth Towne, and settled in Oxford, Mass., locating, as nearly as can be ascertained, in the present limits of Auburn,* on Prospect Hill, an elevation of beautiful and fertile table land, and one of the pleasantest rural spots in Worcester County. The hill commands an extensive and charming view of the surrounding region, including in its range of vision, a pleasant succession of mountain, hill and valley; also, the now flourishing city of Worcester, and glimpses of several villages. He owned several other tracts of land in Oxford and vicinity, but this, doubtless, is the place on which he settled. The late Col. Edward Phillips of Sturbridge, a great-grandson, had a fixed impression that his grandfather, Dea. Jonathan Phillips, the oldest son of Joseph, was born on Prospect Hill. Col. Phillips also regarded this place as the old family homestead. After his death, this farm was owned and occupied by his son, Israel Phillips, and later, by Simon, son of Israel. At the time of Israel's death the farm contained, by estimation, eighty acres, but was probably somewhat larger. At the death of Simon the ownership of the farm passed out of the Phillips name, having been owned in the family nearly ninety years. The house still standing is said, by one who once lived there, to have been the same one occupied by his gr.-son, Simon; and a little to the rear there was remaining, a few years since, the foundation and cellar of another building, supposed to be the original home. The house is about one mile from the station of North Oxford Mills, on a branch of the Boston and Albany R. R., and, to any of the hundreds of his descendants who feel a special interest in the old homestead of one of their early ancestors, a visit to the place on a pleasant summer day might well repay the effort. The farm is the same one lately owned and occupied by Wm. D. Dalrymple.

His wife died July 4, 1760. He married (2d) Dec. 10, 1760, Mrs. Bathsheba Towne of Oxford. He died April 23, 1771, "in the 69th year of his age."

It is impossible, at this day, to give anything like a personal description of him; but, from the fact that he left the vicinity of his father's home when a young man, and sought a home for himself, in what had been so recently an unbroken wilderness, where it required constant toil and hardship to secure the necessaries of life, we must conclude that he was a man of vigor, energy and perseverance; qualities which have been inherited in a large degree by a good number of his descendants. His place of burial is not known. In the old Auburn Cemetery, near the church, several of his descendants are known to have been buried, though not a monument has been erected in the yard by friend or relative, to mark the last resting-place of any of them.

The descendants have, in years past, usually been somewhat above the average size, not tending much to corpulence, but of large frame rather than fleshy, and with features rather heavily Most of them have had "a keen appreciation of wit and humor," and heartily enjoyed a sharp joke. Not many of them have been graduates of colleges or entered the professions. The greater part have lived in farming communities, and more have followed farming than any other occupation. A good number rendered efficient aid to their country during the war of the Rebellion; some of whom extended their service from their enlistment in the early days of the war to its close. It is to be regretted that the materials are not at hand for more extended sketches of many worthy individuals of whom but brief mention is now made. Many of them have been men of integrity, of exemplary lives, and of firm and honorable principles. Children, all born in Oxford:

- 1. Jonathan, b. Aug. 12, 1732; of Sturbridge. (No. 21.)
- 2. Joseph, b. April 11, 1734; m. Nov. 11, 1756, Lydia Willson of Oxford, b. March 30, 1735, daughter of John and Mary

(IV.) Dea. Jonathan Phillips (son of Joseph and Ruth: No. 20,) was born Aug. 12, 1732; a farmer in Sturbridge, and deacon of the Baptist Church in that town. He and his brothers, Joseph and Israel, were in a detachment of thirty-four soldiers that marched from Oxford, Aug. 18, 1758, for the relief of Fort William Henry, on the shore of Lake George. He was the first settler in his immediate neighborhood, and his extensive farm, located at the head of Cedar Pond, two miles north of Sturbridge Centre, was owned and occupied by himself and his descendants for one hundred and twenty years. Perhaps no place in America has been held as a homestead by any family of this name for a greater length of time unless possibly we except the Andover homestead. The buildings stand in a very seeluded place, nestled away on the westerly side of the valley, at a considerable distance from any traveled road; while a little farther up the valley, toward the north, stood the old saw-mill, where several generations took their turn at rolling in the logs, and patiently watched the "up-and-down" saw as it heavily and tediously jerked its way through. The house in which he lived was still standing when the place was last visited by the writer, in 1865, though not used as a dwelling-house. The family at that time occupied a neat and commodious brick residence, erected close by, by his grandson, Col. Edward Phillips, which, though unfavorably situated for attracting attention and scarcely to be seen from the main road, is well worthy of a commanding situation. He married, Oct. 4, 1753, Rachel Humphrey, daughter of Dea.

(V.) Dr. Ebenezer Humphrey Phillips (son of

Eft Phillips Town clerk

Jonathan and Rachel: No. 21,) born July 17, 1756; studied medicine with Dr. Thomas Babbitt of Sturbridge, and settled in Charlton. He was regarded as a very skilful physician, and his services were often deemed requisite in the neighboring towns. At the age of fifty he was stricken with a shock of palsy which so paralyzed him that he was unable to walk, or to talk so as to be understood for about two years. On the return of health, he found his memory was so impaired that it was impossible for him to pursue his favorite calling. Being anxious to resume practice, he commenced reading medicine again. After reading for some time, the recollection of it flashed upon his mind; he remembered that he had read it all before, and afterwards was able to attend to the wants of the sick, most of the time, till the very close of his life. He bore arms in the service of his country during the Revolutionary War, and for some years received a pension. He was influential in forming a lodge of Masons in Charlton in 1799. In 1806 the Grand Master of Masons appointed him Deputy Grand Master for the 6th district, with task assigned to visit the several lodges in the district from time to time and report their condition to the Grand Lodge. He held the office of town clerk from 1801 till 1807. He married (1st) 1780, Ruth Morgan of Brimfield. She died April 10, 1817, in her 64th year. He married (2d) Mrs. Ruth (Towne) Wheelock,* daughter of Gen. Salem Towne, Sr. His death, which was caused by another paralytic shock, took place in Charlton, Dec. 1, 1837. the Boston & Worcester R. R., which position he held nearly thirty years, resigning it when eighty-one years of age. He possessed considerable musical talent, and was for many years leader of the church choir. He commenced his public singing in Charlton Church, when nine years old, sustaining his part, the alto, alone; and was connected with a choir nearly all the time for fifty years, until his voice failed from disease in the throat. He was ever a man of few words, but was always a lover and promoter of good morals, and was one of the original founders of the Evangelical Cong. Church and Parish in Westboro, and that, "at a time when most bitter opposition served to root more deeply the principle that led to outward action."

Up to the age of eighty-seven, he was able to superintend his farm, and to work many hours each day in his garden among the flowers, which had ever been his delight. The portrait prepared for this work was from a photograph taken when he was eighty years old. He married Oct: 12. 1818, Ann Maria Brigham, born July 14, 1794, daughter of Hon. Elijah and Sarah (Ward) Brigham, and granddaughter of Gen. Artemas Ward. He was one who always made his home happy, and their married life included sixty-one and one-half years. He passed away at half-past one on the morning of May 1, 1880, and she on the 14th of Dec. following. Children:

1. ELIJAH BRIGHAM, b. in Sutton, Aug, 20, 1819. Beginning in 1839, his life thus far has been almost wholly occupied with the management of railroads, and he has held high official connection with no less than eight different railroad corporations, some of them among the most important in the United States.

"He commenced his service as railroad employé at a period when railroads were in their infancy, and has risen in regular order up to his present important rank as president of one of the oldest and most influential railroad corporations in the State. Following his railroad history, it will be seen that in point of date of service he ranks every other railroad superintendent and president in the country. His first service was as clerk in the employ of the Boston and Worcester Railroad Corporation, in October, 1839. In June, 1843, he was advanced to the position of master of transportation, then, as now, an important post, as the increase of freight on our Massachusetts railroads demanded a separate department from that of general superintendent, and the Boston and Worcester Railroad direction was the first to recognize this. As master of transportation he remained until September, 1852, when he was elected, over all others, to the superintendency of the Cleveland and Toledo Railroad, then one of the most advanced railroads of the west; and here it may be pertinent to remark that in the early history of western railroads, the management almost invariably selected for the principal offices those who had been trained on the Boston and Worcester Railroad. This office Mr. Phillips filled satisfactorily till September, 1858, when a change took place in the Boston and Worcester Railroad, and he was requested to return to take the superintendency of that road. This office he held till October, 1865, when the west made another demand, and he was elected president of the Southern Michigan and Northern Indiana Railroad Corporation, the stock being largely held by New England parties. In October, 1870, the Wisconsin Central Railroad started up one of the most important trunk lines of the northwest, and Mr. Phillips was solicited to take charge of its interests, both in construction and in its operation—a trust which he executed with eminent ability as well as satisfaction to his board of directors. In July, 1878, he retired, after arduous service, to obtain needed rest; but he was destined to remain idle but a short time. The Eastern Railroad complication at this time had reached a crisis; a competent president was demanded, and in 1879 Mr. Phillips was the one selected. His record and his services as president of that corporation began a new era in the history of that road. His labors were brilliant and unremitting, and gave him a reputation which could not be disputed, at least, for executive ability and fair independence. Leaving that road, he took the presidency of the narrow gauge road in Missouri, of which he is still president. In November, 1883, after the death of William B. Stearns, president of the Fitchburg Railroad Corporation, the directors cast about for a new president, and, out of a large number to select from, they decided to take Mr. Phillips. He has peculiar qualifications for the office, as he is familiar with all the details of railroad operation and management, and is certainly giving character to this corporation, which is one of the most important in the State."* While at the West he resided in Cleveland, Ohio, Milwaukee, Wis., and Chicago, Ill. (V.) Dea. John Phillips (son of Jonathan and Rachel:

John Phillip,

No. 21.) born June 29, 1760; a farmer in Sturbridge; served for a time in the American army during the Revolutionary War. He was deacon of the Baptist Church in Sturbridge for sixty-four years, represented the town in the Legislature twice.—in 1815 and 1816, and for a considerable time held a commission as justice of the peace, and his papers contain the records of twelve or fifteen couples whom he united in marriage. He married, May 25,* 1785, Love Perry, born June 3, 1767, daughter of Jonathan and Martha Perry of Sturbridge, with whom he lived sixty-four years, she dying Aug. 8, 1849, at the age of eighty-two. He lived on the homestead farm, with the exception of very brief intervals, the whole of his long life, where he died Feb. 25, 1865, at the extreme age of 104 years and eight months.

He voted for George Washington at the first presidential election held in the United States, and for Abraham Lincoln at the election in Nov., 1864, when 104 years of age, and with one exception (1860,) at every intermediate presidential election. Shortly after voting the last time, he received from President Lincoln the following complimentary letter:

"EXECUTIVE MANSION, WASHINGTON,

Nov. 21, 1864.

"MY DEAR SIR:

[&]quot;I have heard of the incident at the polls in your town, in which you bore so honored a part, and I take the liberty of writing to you to express my personal gratitude for the compliment paid me by the suffrage of a citizen so venerable.

"The example of such devotion to civic duties in one whose days have already extended an average life-time beyond the Psalmist's limit, cannot but be valuable and fruitful. It is not for myself only, but for the country which you have in your sphere served so long and so well, that I thank you.

Your friend and servant,

A. LINCOLN."

On the 29th of June, 1860, a large number of his friends and relatives gathered at the Baptist Church in Fiskdale, about four miles from his residence, to celebrate the 100th-anniversary of his birth. As a part of the exercises he offered a prayer and made the following address:

"My friends, I give you thanks for this opportunity of seeing so many of you present, and for the attention bestowed upon me; but I feel unworthy to receive it. As I have been requested to offer prayer on this occasion, I will first make a few remarks. For seventy-five years I have been a professor of religion, and I have endeavored to adorn my profession. I am now an old child—broken down—100 years for you to look upon. I feel that I am a child in knowledge and in everything else. My creed consists of four particular points;—1st, the goodness of God; 2d, the divinity of our Saviour; 3d, the power and reality of revealed religion; 4th, the depravity of man. Here I stand, a monument of God's goodness."

When about fifty years of age, anticipating the decline of life, he wrote a letter to his oldest son, who was away from home engaged in teaching, requesting the son so to arrange his plans as to come home soon and remain, in order to take care of him in his old age. The son obediently complied with the father's request; but, after the lapse of upwards of fifty additional years, and while the father was still living, the son jocosely intimated to the compiler of this record, with the usual pleasant twinkle of his eye, that he regarded the arrangement as somewhat premature, and more especially in view of the fact that he hardly needed the strong arm of his son to sustain him till near the close of his protracted life, having retained his native vigor till it seemed uncertain which of the two would be likely first to require an arm of support in their declining years.

He was well formed, strong and vigorous. In his prime, his height was six feet, and, after sixteen years of age, his weight was always about two hundred pounds. At the age of eighty, after having used glasses for thirty years, he was able to leave them off and read without them till within a few years of his death. When in his 100th year he was summoned to Worcester as a witness at court, and was able to recognize his signature and give his evidence with clearness and distinctness. Next to a strong and enduring constitution, his long and even life is attributable to his habits of strict temperance. "His manner of living was always plain and frugal, laboring hard as a farmer, but not to excess, and not to late hours, usually retiring early and rising early. He was temperate in eating, drinking, sleeping, working and in all things."

(VI.) Col. Edward Phillips (son of John and Love: No. 24,) born April 29, 1786; for many years one of the most prominent and useful men of his town, being widely known and highly respected, and was continually honored by being called to fill the various town offices,—moderator, selectman, assessor, school committee, and all the minor offices, and was often placed on important committees. In his early life he was employed considerably in teaching school. He was elected three times to represent the town in the State Legislature, held a commission as justice of the peace for about thirty years, and that of coroner as long or longer, and was colonel of the home militia. When Southbridge petitioned the Legislature for a part of the territory of Sturbridge, which they tried twice, he was sent both times as agent of the town to aid their representative in opposing the petition. He was elected, in 1832, one of a committee of four.* to effect a design for the Worcester Manual Labor High School. an institution out of which grew the present Worcester Academy, and was afterwards one of its trustees. He was a person of large frame, in his prime upwards of six feet in height, naturally very erect and of dignified bearing: but he fell, while repairing his house, in 1855, a distance of some fourteen feet and struck on his head, producing an injury of the spine from which he never recovered. After this he was never able to carry his head erect, and it doubtless had the effect of shortening his life by some years. He had large clear black eyes and heavy features, but a pleasant countenance. He was, like other members of the family, inclined to jocularity, was agreeable and courteous in his manners and entertaining in his conversation.

(VI.) Jonathan Perry Phillips (son of John and Love: No. 24.) born Sept. 9, 1792. He served an apprentice-ship to Squire Upham to learn the blacksmith's trade. After serving his time and reaching his majority, he started for Oneida Co., N. Y., on horseback, his sole capital being his horse, and twenty-five dollars in money. At Whitestown, N. Y., he became acquainted with Sophronia Joslyn (daughter of John Joslyn, formerly of Tyringham, Mass., of Norman French descent), to whom he was married Jan. 17, 1817. After a few years they removed to Canastota, Madison Co., N. Y., where he carried on a large business, in blacksmithing and wagon-making, and achieved a handsome property. In Oct., 1849, the family removed to Lake Mills, Jefferson Co., Wisconsin, where he lived, with the exception of a year or so, at Madison, Wis., until his death, Sept. 21, 1865. She died Feb. 23, 1884. His daughter, Mrs. H. P. Eaton, to whom the compiler is indebted for this record of her father's family, writes:

"He was a man of sound judgment, even temper, strong affections and friendships, universally beloved and respected, always greatly interested in all matters of public interest. Judge Spencer of Syracuse, N. Y., recently told my brother that the first person he ever heard urge the necessity of free schools and a thorough education of all classes, was our father. He was an earnest anti-slavery man from the beginning, a man of broad intelligence, who kept his interest in all the great questions of the day, up to the day of his death.

"Our branch has the light brown hair which our father inherited from his mother's side of the house; though some of us take the dark brown hair from the Joslyn side. All of us have many strong Phillips traits in common; among them a keen appreciation of wit and humor. All are inveterate jokers, as was our father, and all dearly love a good horse,—true to the Greek origin of our name. None of us care much for glitter or general society; we are strong in our prejudices, likes and dislikes. It is interesting to trace heredity extending even to chirography. I have been surprised to find with the majority of us such strong resemblances in penmanship to others and remote members of the Phillips family." Children:

Respecting his character, &c., his sister fondly writes:-"My brother Charley was one of the very best specimens of the Phillips family that I ever met. All that I could say would not do him justice nor convey to you an idea of what a grand good man he was; genial, witty, of sound judgment, of broad charity, one of 'God's own men,' as I've heard others call him. I have often remarked, and so have others, his strong resemblance in figure and appearance to Wendell Phillips of He was the recognized leader of the Republican party in his county. He served several terms in the Assembly, and was State Senator-elect at the time of his death. Democratic party have a majority in that county of about 1600, but he was elected by over 1500 majority. He was indefatigable in working for the educational interests of the town and county, and is deeply mourned throughout the State. He had kept the farm upon which the family settled in 1849, and had become a large stock raiser, making a specialty of Alderney cattle and carriage horses."

At first he received his commission from the Governor, but was afterwards elected by the people, and was continued in this office till his death. The amount of his legal business soon became so extensive that he was compelled to give up his former occupation, and devote himself wholly to his new calling. Incessant application to this business, confinement in the impure air of the court room, and want of sufficient exercise, seriously and permanently injured his health, which he made repeated but unsuccessful efforts to regain. (VI.) Israel Phillips (son of Israel and Mercy: No. 31,) born Sept. 1, 1797. He left his home when about twelve years of age, and after one or two years spent with his uncles, Daniel and Simon, went to

Irrael Phill

Leicester to learn the trade of card-maker; but the company failed before his time expired, and we next find him laboring at his trade at South Hadley, Mass., and later at Lansingburg, N. Y. He was the first stage driver on what was called "the east side mail line" from Springfield to Brattleboro, Vt., driving from South Hadley to Springfield. The first three years of his married life were spent in Greenfield; then he moved to Hartford, Conn., and took charge of a card factory, for two years at a salary of two hundred dollars a year. He then removed to Springfield, and with others there commenced the manufacture of cards under the firm name of Bowdoin, Phillips & Co. Four years after, the company obtained a charter under the name of the Springfield Card Manufacturing Co., of which he continued as the superintendent. He was chosen 1st Lieut. of the Springfield Horse Guards, and commissioned by Gov. Levi Lincoln, and was twice chosen delegate from Springfield to the Democratic State Convention. His health failing, in 1830, he sold out his interest in the card company, and moved on to a farm in Greenfield. In 1835, having regained his health, he removed to Willimansett, near Springfield, as superintendent of the Willimansett Manufacturing Co., of which the late Hon.

Stephen C. Bemis was agent and manager, and served in the employ of Mr. Bemis and his sons in various positions, more or less every year, for upwards of forty-five years. For two years he had charge of a hardware store for Mr. Bemis in Troy, N. Y., with a $10,000 stock of goods; but this enterprise proved a failure, and fortune set him down at poverty's gate. So reduced was he at this time, the spring of 1843, that, with wife, six children and all his earthly possessions, he left the city for his native town on a one-horse wagon. This was a heavy blow to bear; the cloud that overshadowed him was black indeed, but he passed through the trial manfully. Possessed with a remarkably hopeful spirit, good health and strong hands, he entered anew the great battle of life, fortune smiled, and he not only kept the wolf from the door, but earned and still enjoys an easy competency. His employer, the late Mr. Bemis of Springfield, was once heard to remark to a friend, "I have great confidence in the honesty of Mr. Phillips, why! I would trust him with millions of uncounted gold." In religion, a strong believer in the final restoration to peace and happiness of the whole family of man; in politics, a staunch Jacksonian democrat; a Free Mason sixty years.

His son, Dea. Charles C. Phillips, to whom the compiler is indebted for the greater part of this sketch, wrote in 1878, "he is nearly eighty-one and has just returned from a commercial trip embracing the New England States and the State of New York. He is probably the oldest traveling agent and the best known of any in the country, having been on the road some thirty-five years." After the above was written he continued to travel for two or three years, but has since retired from the road, and has been residing with his daughter Caroline, at his homestead in Greenfield, where 1885, he was still enjoying a comfortable life. The above autograph was written when he was eighty-seven years of age. The portrait prepared for this work is from a photograph taken at the age of eighty.

He m. (4th) Dec. 19, 1816, Lucy Harwood of Charlton, born Feb. 22, 1787, daughter of Gershom and Susanna (Wyman) Harwood, and granddaughter of Solomon and Sarah Harwood. Her father was a Revolutionary soldier. She had the reputation of being an excellent dairy woman, her butter and cheese always being prized as first class. In confirmation of this, she at one time received a testimonial from Hon. Charles Allen of Worcester, who had long been one of her customers, in the form of a valuable present, accompanied by a highly complimentary letter. She was very large, and weighed at sixty years of age, two hundred and forty pounds. To the children who were entrusted to her care immediately upon entering this household, she ever acted the part of a faithful mother. Soon after the death of her father, in 1826, Mr. Phillips bought the farm near the centre village, which had been owned and occupied by the Harwood family for about seventyfive years, and they moved on to it in 1828, and here they both died. She died Wednesday, Fcb. 10, 1875. Children, all born in Charlton (first three by second marriage, last four by third marriage):

this occupation and was for some years employed in the service of the Adams Express Company in Hartford, Conn., and in New York City. He afterwards engaged in mercantile pursuits in the latter place, and later in Arkansas, to which place he went in 1865. He was extremely quiet and unassuming in his general conduct, but he met with that bitter opposition which has too often been the lot of the northern emigrant to the south. Consequently the unsettled state of the community led him to enter actively into political and military life. When attempts were made in 1868 and 1869 to revolutionize the State Government, he was appointed to the command of the State Militia, with title of Major-General. During this trying period his life was hunted by the outlaws of that region, and he received several bullet wounds in attempts made to assassinate him. After this he was clerk of the Chancery Court for five years. He was United States Marshal from 1876 to 1880 for the western district of Arkansas, which includes the Indian Territory, and comprises a larger area than any other district, and in the amount of business done, money expended and responsibility cast upon the officers of the Court, said to be the most important in the United States. At the close of his term of office in 1880, the Arkansas Republican said of him: "Gen. Upham has managed the Marshal's office of his district better than it has ever been managed. A better, more able, honest and efficient officer does not live."

"Upham is a man of pure private and public character; a man who can be used by no one. His character, ability and peculiar fitness for this position are known and admitted by all. The way he has administered the office for four years has forced praises and commendations from even the unwilling. He—with the aid of a judge and district attorney who have been faithful—has given the people of the Indian country peace and security against the efforts of interlopers, murderers, outlaws and villains of all kinds, until life and property are measurably secure in that country."

For a number of years he was in the practice of purchasing at the east and transporting to Arkansas choice animals of pure Jersey stock, for the growth and development of which that section seems to have a peculiar fitness, and his herd and those of his customers included some of the best specimens of breeding stock of this kind which could be obtained in New England. After retiring from the position of U.S. Marshal, his health commenced to fail and he came on a trip to New England, hoping to recuperate amid the scenes of his native town; but, though struggling manfully against disease, he continued slowly to decline and died at the homestead in Dudley, Nov. 18, 1882. In 1881 he removed to Wethersfield, Conn., where he was installed Sept. 14th, and has since continued to be pastor of the Congregational Church in that town—a church which claims to be the oldest in the State. His labors have usually given a high degree of satisfaction, which has been repeatedly expressed by the liberality of his parishioners. By his habits of honesty and truthfulness he always held the respect of his acquaintances. He died at his birthplace in Charlton, June 3, 1880. He m. In this business he has met with encouraging success, and enjoys the reputation of an honorable dealer. In 1881, he built a large dam, five hundred feet in length, one-fourth mile lower down, and erected a commodious building for a grist-mill and saw-mill. In 1883, he bought a tract of seventy-five acres of land with the purpose of flowing it as a reservoir, thereby largely increasing the capacity and the value of his privilege. Daniel, Phillips

41,) born July 2, 1809; went to Westboro in 1829, and carried on butchering and other business, which not proving remunerative, he removed to Hartford, Conn., Oct., 1841. Here he engaged in the express business, then in its infancy, and which grew during his connection with it to the very extensive proportions which it attained in later years. His business efforts were here rewarded with abundant success. He was the Hartford agent of the Adams Express Company for several years following its incorporation, but for some years past has not been actively engaged in that business. For many years he has been prominently identified with several of the principal banking, insurance, manufacturing, educational and benevolent institutions of Hartford, and has been the firm and helping friend of the important religious and charitable enterprises of the city and community, ever watching carefully for the best interests of the city and the institutions with which he has been connected. Being one of the first to engage in the express business, it is perhaps, not too much to say that the implicit confidence which the general public have in the express companies of the day, is owing, in no small degree, to the firm and honorable business principles which it was his constant object to initiate into the system at its commencement. On many occasions he has been elevated to positions of trust by the votes of the citizens of Hartford; he represented the city in the General Assembly at New Haven during the session of 1854, and was Alderman in 1859. He has been director or trustee of each of the following companies and associations, several of which positions he continues to occupy: Hartford Savings Bank and Building Association, City Fire Ins. Co., Charter Oak Life Ins. Co., Hartford Steam Boiler Ins. Co., Orient Fire Ins. Co., American National Bank, Mechanics Savings Bank (also vicepresident of the latter), National Screw Co., Weed Sewing Machine Co., Willimantic Linen Co., Theological Institute of Conn., Hartford Female Seminary, Hartford Branch of the Am. Tract Society, and Cedar Hill Cemetery. He was a member of the building committee for the erection, in 1869, of the magnificent business block on Main Street, of the Charter Oak Life Insurance Co. He was one of the signers of the call for the first Republican mass meeting ever held in Connecticut, and which resulted in the formation of the Republican party of that State. Ever since that time he has been a member of that party, an out-spoken advocate of its principles, and usually a firm and ardent supporter of its candidates. Being a man of warm heart and genial disposition, and of a peculiarly practical benevolence, he has gained a great number of friends among all classes who will cherish the memory of his many deeds of kindness. More than one is able to say that the business and social standing to which he has happily attained, is owing largely to the encouragement which he received in earlier days from Mr. Phillips. But those who have the best claim to the affections of their fellow-men are sometimes the ones who suffer the heaviest blows at the hands of Providence, and so it has been with him. He and his wife have been blessed with five happy children, but they have been removed by death, at intervals of some years, till all are gone. He married April 6, 1836, Mary M. Forbush of Westboro, born Feb. 10, 1812. Children:

- 1. Mary Hellen, b. in Westboro, April 21, 1838; d. in Hartford, Aug. 19, 1843.
- 2. Daniel Austin, b. in Westboro, Feb. 14, 1840; d. in Hartford, March 22, 1861. He was of quick and clear mind, of good judgment, accurate in forming conclusions, and with an aptitude for business which was more than an average for those of his age. He was of a somewhat humorous disposition, a pleasant and jovial companion, and had a large number of warm friends. For considerable time previous to his death, he was clerk in the office of the Adams Express Co. in Hartford.
- 3. Henry Curtis, b. in Hartford, Sept. 24, 1843. He was in the service of the Adams Express Co. for several years as messenger on the railroad between Hartford and Providence, and in various other capacities. Failing health compelled him to give up active employment. He was generous and hopeful in his nature, a cheerful and pleasant companion. He d. July 31, 1882. He m. April 8, 1878, Addie Gilbert of Hartford, b. April 8, 1846, dau. of Milo M. and Caroline Gilbert. No children.
- 4. ALICE MARIA, b. in Hartford, Sept. 16, 1848. In the summer of 1864 she crossed the Atlantic in company with her father and other friends, and visited with much gratification the principal points of attraction in Great Britain, France, Germany and Switzerland. She d. while on a visit to friends in Albany, N. Y., Jan. 29, 1865. She was noticeable for her amiable qualities, being possessed of a lovely countenance, a winning manner and a sweet disposition. She was a light in the household, and a gentle and confiding friend among her associates.
- 5. Charles Wille, b. in Hartford, July 3, 1852; d. after a brief sickness, May 16, 1870. Of an agreeable and confiding disposition, he seemed to gain the affection of all with whom he came in contact, as well as the perfect confidence of his employers. Previous to his last sickness he was employed as clerk in the office of the Charter Oak Life Insurance Co. The estimation in which he was held by his employers may be shown from the fact, that, during the morning of the funeral the office of the company was closed, and the officers, directors and clerks attended the funeral in a body, wearing the badge of mourning.

(VI.) Moses Dresser Phillips (son of Daniel and Abigail: No. 41,) born May 15, 1813. Not being of a sufficiently robust constitution to endure the labors of the farm, he left the paternal homestead, Sept. 18, 1832, being nineteen years of age, and went to Worcester, then a thriving village of four thousand inhabitants, where he engaged as a clerk in the bookstore of Clarendon Harris. In 1835 he went into partnership with William Lincoln, Esq., and with him followed the business of bookseller and publisher for some years. But desiring a larger field for his labors, he removed his trade, about the year 1845, from Worcester to Boston, where, till the close of his life, he was principal partner in the firm of Phillips, Sampson & Co., whose extensive transactions in the book trade gained for them a world-wide reputation, the amount of their business, part of the time, being regarded as second only to one other establishment of the kind in America. Thus he raised himself by his own exertions, in a little more than twenty-five years, from the humble position in which he first entered business, to the head of the first publishing house in Boston; and he became the founder of the Atlantic Monthly, a magazine unexcelled in the branch of literature to which it is devoted. The accumulating cares of busines, greatly increased by the financial pressure of 1857 and 1858, and by the death of Mr. Sampson, his chief partner, produced too severe a strain upon his constitution, and he gradually sunk under the weight thus brought to bear upon him. He was a man of genial ways, of firm and honest principles and noble sentiments, which characteristics won for him a large number of friends. In the years 1852 and 1853, he was a member of the Worcester Board of Aldermen. Perhaps his character and abilities may best be shown by the following resolutions and statements made on the occasion of his death, by men who were familiar with his business life. At a meeting of the booksellers and publishers of Boston, held for the purpose of taking some action in regard to his death, the following resolutions were unanimously adopted:

"Whereas, we have learned with regret, of the death of our friend and co-laborer, Mr. Moses D. Phillips; therefore

"Resolved, That we have always recognized in him the character of an honest, faithful man; that we cherish his memory with respect, and that in his death we have lost an intelligent and useful member of the trade.

Resolved, That we close our places of business during the funeral services."

One said of him: "He became favorably known for his intelligence, excellent judgment, and executive abilities. In comparatively a short time the firm gained a high reputation at home and abroad. The deceased was much respected by the whole community, and was highly esteemed by a large circle of friends."

Another remarked: "He was a man remarkable for his modesty, industry, honesty and nobleness of heart; was amiable, faithful and reliable. Those who knew him well, agree that he had a genial spirit, a fund of ready anecdote, and great kindness of heart."

Another wrote: "After almost daily business transactions with Mr. Phillips and his firm, for about fifteen years, it is but truth and justice to say, that he always thoroughly understood what he wanted, gave his orders concisely, managed everything methodically, was always ready to assist in removing difficulties and smoothing the path, and never placed obstacles in the way; was always courteous and agreeable, even when most pressed by his multitudinous engagements. And during the whole period, no matter under howsoever trying circumstances (and no doubt they were often presented), he never lost his good temper or spoke to us an unkind word. Amidst a multiplicity of calls in attending to so large a business, he was always attentive and social to the caller, and had a ready fund of anecdote, or story, or humor, to make pleasant the dreary path of daily toil and care. He was to be envied while living, and his memory will be fondly cherished, we doubt not, by hundreds, if not thousands, of persons who had no kinsman's claim, but who enjoyed the broad comprehensive and practical view he took of the subjects discussed with those whose daily walk brought them into his society. As a business man he was a model."

He continued his residence in Worcester till 1856, when he change it to Brookline, four miles from his place of business, where he died after a protracted illness, August 20, 1859. His remains were taken to Worcester and buried in Rural Cemetery. He married April 10, 1838, Charlotte Foxcroft, born in Worcester, 1812, daughter of John and Charlotte (Heywood) Foxcroft.* Children:

It was the custom of the late Judge Charles Allen of Worcester, to depend upon him annually for a supply of butter, and he and his father, counting the few years in which his father preceded him, furnished that family with table butter for fifty-one years in unbroken succession. He came into possession of the farm previously owned by his father, and, by persistent industry, energy and economy, greatly aided and encouraged in his efforts by his frugal and devoted wife, added to the original farm of fifty acres upwards of fifty more, some of it containing valuable woodland. In 1878, having sold the homestead farm two years before, he removed to Auburn, where he has since resided. The portrait was taken at the age of sixty-nine. GENEALOGY OF THE FAMILY

OF SOUTHBORO, MASS.

No 46.

- (I.) Ebenezer Phillips, the ancestor of a great number who bear the family name, was a resident of Southboro, Mass. Respecting his history, it is much easier to tell what is not known concerning him, than to relate any of the events of his life. Diligent research and repeated inquiries have failed to reveal either his parentage, his birthplace, or the length of time he lived in Southboro. A copy from the town record gives no earlier date concerning this family than 1745. His will, in which he mentions his wife Mary, was dated Nov. 20, 1745, and proved Aug. 21, 1746, showing his death to have occurred between those two dates.* A written obligation, dated Feb. 25, 1742–3, and beginning as follows, shows him to have been a resident of Stoneham:
- "Know all men by these presents that I, Ebenezer Phillips of Stoneham, in the County of Middlesex, in the province of Massachusetts Bay, in New England, yeoman, am holden and stand firmly bound and obliged unto Ephraim Wood of Southboro, in the County of Worcester, in the province aforesaid, yeoman, in the full and just sum of two hundred pounds, old tenor value."

^{*} Mr. Abner S. Phillips of Bondville, Vt., in writing to the compiler, says: "My father had the records of the first of the Phillipses who came to this country, but they were destroyed by a little roguish girl about sixty years ago. The Phillipses left a large amount of property in England, choosing rather to leave their property than to be deprived of the privilege of enjoying their religion." Mr. A. S. Phillips also has in his possession other papers and relics, including a sword, once the property of his ancestors.

Respecting his age at the time of his death, it may be inferred that he was past middle life, as two of his children were married before his death, and the others soon afterwards.* Children:

- 2. EBENEZER. (No. 55.)

- (II.) Samuel Phillips (son of Ebenezer, senior, of Southboro: No. 46,) born June 22, 1726, birthplace not known; married Martha Newton, and removed, probably as late as 1771 or later, to Athol, Mass., where he died Feb. 4. 1810.† He and four of his sons were soldiers in the Revolutionary War. His will was dated June 4, 1793, and presented to probate by Seth Phillips, executor, May 17, 1810. Children, all born in Southboro: ‡
 - 1. Samuel, b. May 10, 1748; m. Joanna ———; d. 1791. Child:
 - 1. Zedekiah, b. June 29, 1772.

^{*} Andrew Phillips, 1659, mentioned in "Wyman's Charlestown Genealogies," pp. 740 to 747, had a son Andrew, who m. Sarah Smith, Nov. 11, 1685, and had ch., Andrew, Ebenezer, Joanna and Samuel. Of these, Ebenezer was b. 1695, and m. Mary Smith. This, taken in connection with the fact that Ebenezer Phillips of Southboro, 1745, had a wife, Mary, and ch. Samuel, Ebenezer and Joanna, and a gr.son, Smith Phillips, and that at one time, 1743, he was of Stoneham, which was set off from Charlestown, points firmly towards the Charlestown, or Boston, families of this name for the origin of Ebenezer Phillips of Southboro. It would indicate that Ebenezer of Southboro, was the same as Ebenezer, son of Andrew, and guided by these statements only, we should reasonably arrive at this conclusion; but in this we are doomed to disappointment, unless there is an error in the record, or the printed copy, such as does not seem probable, for it is stated farther along that Samuel was administrator to his bro. Ebenezer, age 28, July 11, 1723. Whereas, Ebenezer of Southboro was living more than twenty years later.

[†] One record says he died Feb. 3. Another says he was born July 3, 1732, but is evidently wrong. The same says his wife was born June 11, 1736, and died Feb. 3, 1818. This date of her birth is wrong, and perhaps should be 1726 instead of 1736.

[‡] The twelve children are all reported from the town records of Southboro as "born to Samuel Phillips and Martha, his wife."

- (II.) Ebenezer Phillips* (son of Ebenezer, senior, of Southboro: No. 46,) resided in Southboro, but appears to have lived later in neighboring towns. He married Hannah Liscomb (or Lyscom). Children: †
 - 1. Ruth, b. May 27, 1745.

^{*} A coincidence of names between some of the children of Ebenezer Phillips, Jr., of Southboro, and those of Ebenezer Phillips, b. Weston, 1722 (son of Samuel, and gt.-grandson of Rev. Geo. of Watertown), has led some to conclude that the two were identical, and it is so given in a lately published historical work; but this is evidently erroneous. The dates are widely at variance, and such a conclusion is contrary to the most authentic records and best preserved traditions of this family. It is certain that his grandchildren styled him Ebenezer Phillips, Jr. (son of Ebenezer of Southboro), and his son of the same name, Ebenezer Phillips, 3d.

[†] The records of this family seem to have been much neglected, which made it difficult to give a complete and correct genealogy. It is believed, however, that the

(III.) Ebenezer Phillips (son of Ebenezer, Jr. of Southboro: No. 55,) born Feb. 23, 1752; described by his descendants as a man of great muscular development and marvellous strength, six feet two inches in height. It is related of him, that, on one occasion, when drawing several barrels, filled with eider, from the mill, the cart accidentally tipped up and precipitated the barrels into the road. This was repeated after he had carefully lifted the barrels into the hind end of the cart, and then, in the heat of the excitement occasioned thereby, he grasped the barrels by the chine, one at a time, and lifted them with agility and apparent ease over the side of the cart. Some of his descendants, for several generations, have inherited to a considerable extent, his muscular development and strength, if not his gigantic frame. He was a soldier in the war of the Revolution, participated in the battle of Bunker Hill, and was by the side of Gen. Warren when that distinguished hero fell. Late in life he drew a pension.* Among his descendants there has generally been manifested considerable natural talent for vocal music. He lived in Sutton (now Millbury) and Grafton, and died in Grafton, June 5, 1834. He married Rachel Gale of Sutton (now Millbury). Children:

above, though lacking in dates and general information, is correctly given. The birth of Mary was a little in doubt, and possibly should have been placed after that of Sasannah. One account says, Hannah, wife of Ebenezer Phillips. was b. April 29, 1722, 3d child of Israel Lyscom of Marlboro.

He assisted with his team to convey Gen. McDowell's camp equipage from Washington to Centerville at the time of the first battle of Bull Run, and was close by headquarters during the battle. He soon after went on one of the government transport steamers, and was on the water for two years. (VI.) Walter Polk Phillips (son of Andrew Smith of Providence: No. 66,) was twelve years. After the premature close of his school days the ensuing two years were devoted to service on a farm, when, being fourteen years of age, he entered the employ of the American Telegraph Company, at Providence, R. I., as a messenger boy. Here his aptitude and devotion to duty were made apparent and he soon became a valuable operator. In 1867, he being then barely twenty-one years of age, we find him the acknowledged head of the telegraphic profession as a skilled and rapid manipulator. In that year he performed the greatest telegraphic achievement on record, viz: "receiving," that is, copying from sound, in a clear, legible hand, 2,731 words in sixty minutes, a feat which has never been equalled. This performance called forth the hearty personal recognition of the inventor of the Morse telegraph, Prof. Samuel F. B. Morse, who presented Mr. Phillips with a handsome testimonial; and, on April 27th of that year (the seventy-eighth anniversary of the great inventor's birth), he penned a strong and flattering autograph letter to young Phillips, acknowledging the wonderful perfection he had reached. In 1870, Mr. Phillips became the managing editor of the Providence Daily Herald, and the marked ability with which he conducted that paper attracted the attention of many of the leading state officials, and earned for him the enduring friendship of numerous men of mark. 1872, Mr. Phillips founded the Attleboro Chronicle, and by his ability and untiring energy not only made it a flourishing concern in Attleboro, but placed it on the news-stands of the larger neighboring cities. The Chronicle passed from his hands in 1875, when he entered the service of the Associated Press in its New York office. Although Mr. Phillips entered the latter service as a subordinate, he was, ten months thereafter, promoted to the important position of principal assistant to James W. Simonton, who is at the head of all the far-reaching machinery of this powerful organization.

On the fourteenth of June, 1878, his thirty-second birthday, Mr. Phillips was placed at the head of the Washington bureau of the Associated Press, a position of much influence, honor and emolument. He is also Superintendent of the Associated Press telegraph line, and under his immediate direction or wise counsels, vast improvements have been introduced during the past four years. Among these improvements may be mentioned the "Phillips system of Steno-telegraphy," which doubles the capacity of wires without the aid of any expensive machinery. This system has been introduced on the Associated Press circuits with pronounced success, and is probably destined to come into general use for the rapid transmission of business on public lines, at an early day.*

Between 1872 and 1875 he wrote some remarkably elever sketches—studies of by-gone telegraphic heroes—which, in 1876, were published in book form, together with a series of non-telegraphic stories. His entrance to "the sacred guild of authors" was greeted with many flattering notices from the press, and was succeeded by large sales, several editions of the book being rapidly called for.

In addition to his present duties, he is constantly writing verses,† sketches and editorial articles for literary, telegraphic or other scientific papers, and he is at present engaged on a novel illustrative of a New England boy's life. Indeed, he has been a prolific writer for newspapers for the last ten years, under the pen names of "Gilbert Slowboy," "Maurice McLeod," and finally "John Oakum," which is now the widest and most favorably known.

While to bespeak for Mr. Phillips at present, a place beside the very foremost of our leading writers of the present day would be premature, it is no exaggeration to say that his language and his descriptions, whatever they bear upon, are as pure and as clear as those of authors whose style is accepted as a standard, even if they have not pretended to so wide a range, and that there is much promise in him for his maturer years. The world to him, notwithstanding his extreme earnestness and numerous well balanced and settled convictions, is a school. He is always open to discuss freely the merits of "the points" in his efforts, excellent as those points may be; promptly profits by successes and failures alike; is always thankful for suggestions and sensible criticism touching his literary work, weighs them all carefully, and acts readily upon them when good ones are made. This is a quality which, of itself alone, must tend greatly toward final success. Another of his qualities is untiring industry. While busily engaged, in one capacity, in supervising the collection and distribution of reliable and unbiased, but necessarily uninspiring commonplace news and statistics, we find him on the other hand, in a different capacity, commenting on the same and drawing the appropriate lesson therefrom for the public, just as naturally and easily as though the latter occupation were the only duty which circumstances had imposed upon him. His published sketches show that they are the deductions of one possessing a habit of close observation, a keen sense of humor, and one who is at the same time a shrewd but mirth-loving man of the world. He "turns out" a pathetic incident, or invests solid sober counsel with all the charm of half-earnest but penetrating pleasantry with equal adroitness; and his writings, pathetic or "light," are ever replete with shrewd and wholesome suggestions.

^{*} When Mr. Simonton died, in 1882, Mr. Phillips retired from the Associated Press and assumed full charge as General Manager of The United Press, which, under his direction during the past two years, has won recognition as a legitimate and powerful rival of the Associated Press. His headquarters are in New York, and his home is in Plainfield, N. J.

[†] The verses at the close of this sketch, which have been widely copied, illustrate his poetical efforts.

In his literary treatment of the telegraphic profession—a field where some of his earliest triumphs were won—there is not one competitor to approach him.—As a far-seeing critic he has proved himself fearless and just, yet so good-natured, that his victims can never muster up feelings of resentment, but rather profit by his lecturing. Nor is his strength as a writer confined to prose. His poetical efforts are well represented. The estimation in which Mr. Phillips is held by the telegraphic profession is best determined by the numerous spontaneous outbursts which greet him in the journals, published by that interesting and generally intelligent fraternity. Many poetical offerings have been made to him by his admirers, which, although they evince a lusty appreciation of Mr. Phillips, are hardly worth more than bare mention.

He refers to his native town in "Oakum Pickings." as follows:—"Away up among the hills and dales of Massachusetts, where the Blackstone winds brightly in the sunlight a mere brook; where the atmosphere is as clear and fragrant as nectar; where, of all the world, the trees and the earth are of the greenest possible tint; where the robin sings in the sweetest strains at morning; where the bluejay is the bluest; where the whippoorwill chirps in tones of the most melancholy sweetness at night; where the moon shines the softest; where the stars twinkle the merriest; and where everything around, in our opinion at least, is primitive, beautiful and smiling, we were born and passed together our dear, dreamy, delicious days of boyhood."—Pierce's History of Grafton.

CURFEW BELLS.

By John Oakum. Naples, 1870.

A grand old hymn sang those village bells,
Which I heard in the golden past;
Their cadence was mellow, but clear and high
And I hear them again 'neath the starlit sky!
And a spell o'er my soul is cast.

I stand again midst whispering trees,
And their murmur a story tells
Of wonderful valor, of love and fame,
While I listen with longings too sweet to name
To the song of those evening bells.

There are thoughts I fancied were gone for aye,
But they come trooping back to-night;
There are unspoken hopes and visions rare,
A locket of gold and a ringlet of hair
And a face of wondrous light.

Loved forms return at this curfew hour,
And dreams which ended in sadness;
Old memories, sweeter than breath of June,
Scent of faded flowers and a long lost tune,
Which chasten my hours of gladness.

Ring out, oh! bells of the by-gone years,
Your voices are dearer to me
Than all musical strains on earth beside,
As your mellow tones reach me at eventide
From over the shimmering sea.

JOHN PHILLIPS.

OF DUXBURY, MASS.: 1638.

There was one. John Phillips of Duxbury and Marshfield, at a very early day. The records of his family are meagre, scattering and unsatisfactory. It is evident that no record was kept by him, for we are informed by the Plymouth Colony Records that John Phillips of Marshfield, and Faith Doty of Plymouth, signed a marriage contract by making their marks, Feb. 23, 1666 [1667 n. s.]. He was doubtless the progenitor of a large family which appears to include those given under Nos. 70 to 89 of this work. After referring to various writers whose accounts are sometimes conflicting, the following statements appear to be the most nearly correct:

No. 68.

John¹ Phillips, born in England, 1602, where he married. He came to Duxbury as early as July, 1638, and bought a house and land there of Robert Mendall. Oct. 19, 1639, "payments to be made yearly, every first day of Oct., at the house of Mr. Winthrop, in Boston." After 1643 he lived in Marshfield, where he was highway surveyor in 1655, and constable in 1657. July 31, 1658, his son John was killed by lightning.* He married for second wife, July 6, 1654, widow Grace Holloway, and she with their son Jeremiah were killed by lightning.

^{* &}quot;Being at work in the meadow, making hay, a tempest suddenly arose and he immediately started for the nearest house. Having entered he sat down between the door and the chimney, when the lightning struck the chimney, and descending, passed out the door, knocking him lifeless on the ground."—Mather MSS.

June 23, 1666.* He married (3d) Mar. 14, 1667, Faith Doty of Plymouth. She died prior to July 10, 1677. One account says he died in 1677, but this may be a mistake referring to the time of her death, for another says he probably died Oct., 1691, almost ninety years old. Children:

- 1. John; killed by lightning as stated.
- 2. Samuel; m. and had a family.
- 3. Jeremiah; killed by lightning at ten years of age.
- 4. Hannah.
- 5. JOSEPH; said to have been killed in the Rehoboth fight, 1676.
- 6. Benjamin.† (No. 69.)

No. 69.

Benjamin² Phillips (son of John,¹) born 1658; married Sarah Thomas. Children:

- 1. John, b. 1682; m. Patience Stevens, 1710.
- 2. Joseph, b. 1685.
- 3. Benjamin, b. 1687.
- 4. Thomas, b. 1691; probably the same who m. Mary Sherman and went to East Bridgewater.
- 5. JEREMIAH, b. 1697.
- 6. Isaac, b. 1702.

Compare these names with the marriages in Marshfield given below.

^{*} The account is related in a letter from Rev. Samuel Arnold of Marshfield, to Rev. Mr. Mather of Boston, 1683, and given by Winsor as follows: There were, at the house of John Phillips, fourteen persons. "Instantly a terrible clap of thunder fell upon the house and rent the chimney, and split the door in many places, and struck most of the persons, if not all." Three were "mortally struck with God's arrows, that they never breathed more." They were the wife of Mr. Phillips, and his son, aged about ten years, and one, Wm. Shertley [Shurtleff], "who had a little child in his arms, which was wonderfully preserved." This Shertley had just before been burnt out of his own house, and with his family, was at this time, "a present sojourner at said Phillips'."—Mather MSS.

[†] Mitchell, in his History of Bridgewater, mentions Benjamin as son of John² who was killed by lightning, and grandson of John¹ of Duxbury, 1638; but Savage, vol. 3, p. 412, gives information indicating that Benjamin was son of John¹ of Duxbury by second marriage, which is much more probable.

The following fragmentary records, if they could be satisfactorily placed, would probably show a connection with the above family in a majority of cases:—

JOHN PHILLIPS

OF EASTON, MASS.

No. 79.

- (I.) Capt. John Phillips of Easton, Mass., the first person in that town who received a captain's commission, was the ancestor of a large number of the Phillips name. His birthplace and origin have not been clearly shown.* He died in Easton, Nov. 14, 1760. Children:
 - 1. Thomas, b. in Easton. Jan. 25. 1712; of Ashfield. (No. 80.)
 - 2. Experience; m. Richard Ellis, an Irishman who was the first settler in Ashfield, Mass.†

† For the following statements the compiler is indebted to Mr. Geo. Bassett of Ashfield, a descendant of Capt. John Phillips.

The town of Ashfield, called Huntstown prior to 1765, was granted to a company of soldiers for service in an expedition to Canada in 1690, commanded by Capt. Ephraim Hunt of Weymouth. There were three in that company by the name of Phillips. The first settler of Ashfield was Richard Ellis as stated above. The second was Thomas Phillips; the third was Ebenezer Smith, whose wife was Richard Ellis's daughter. Thomas Phillips lived in Deerfield a while, "whether any more than a short time being afraid of the Indians, I do not know." In the above company there was John Phillips who drew lot No. 6 in the first division. John Phillips drew for Richard Phillips lot No. 13. Joshua Phillips, "who, I suppose, was my grandmother's brother," drew for Joshua Phillips lot No. 56. The proprietors of Huntstown met and chose John Phillips moderator, March, 1738, 1739 and 1740; "John Phillips committee to lay out lots, committee to build a corn mill 1743. Thomas Phillips was chosen on a committee to see that no one should carry white pine timber out of town; Caleb Phillips and Thomas Phillips on a committee to settle the boundary between Huntstown and Deerfield; Caleb Phillips to have the care of the corn mill; Thomas Phillips to lay out 100 acre lots; Philip Phillips collector, 1769." There was a Benjamin Phillips who had seven sons born from 1750 to 1767: "I think," writes Mr. Bassett, "they were my grandmother Mercy Phillips's relatives."

^{*} There are good reasons for believing that Capt. John Phillips may have been the oldest son, b. 1682, of Benjamin² and Sarah (Thomas) Phillips, of Marshfield, and grandson of John. 1 of Duxbury, 1638, and, if so, the brother of Thomas who sett, in E. Bridgewater about 1735. The coincidence of names and dates points directly to this source. In that case the number of his generation should be (III.) instead of (I.) and the number of each succeeding generation should be changed to coincide.

- "A granddaughter of Elijah Phillips who emigrated from Ashfield to West Virginia, Miss Mabel Forbush, died recently at the hotel of Williston Phillips in Cassadaga, aged 68. She was a cousin of Sawyer Phillips, and came to reside in his family more than forty years ago. His wife dying soon after, in 1844, left a large family of children who thus came under the care and direction of this maiden relative. With the counsel of a mother as well as the affection and tenderness of a sister, she ever continued, till her death, to be a cherished member of each household of the family of Sawyer Phillips." Children, all appear to have been natives of Cassadaga:

 m. Celestina Eley. Four children.

The members of the family comprise eight brothers and one sister, and were all present with their wives and families except G. H. Phillips.

At a stated hour in the afternoon all assembled at the house of Esq. Phillips, and, grouped together in the beautiful maple arbor upon the lawn, were soon interchanging greetings with each other, and relating incidents regarding the history of the family from its earliest juvenile years down to the present. A special feature of the hour was an extensive collection of fine views of all the principal towns and cities and great men and buildings which had been carefully collected by Philip Phillips, the sweet singer, in his travels around the world upon his mission of Christian song, and with the classified arrangements which he was able to give them, made, as it were, panoramic pictures of the countries and places through which he had passed, ^{*} Wednesday, Aug. 8, 1877, was the day set apart by this family for a reunion at the residence of Charles Phillips, Esq., who with his estimable wife and pleasant home made the occasion one long to be remembered by all.

- 8. Sawyer, b. 1831; d. unmarried, 1854.
- 9. Joshua, b. 1833; d. unmarried, 1850.

and for an hour or two the company travelled in thought with him through the great cities and towns of the oriental lands and old country.

Immediately following this pictured journey, the friends gathered into the house and were pleasantly seated in the parlor, where all joined in singing-" And are we yet alive and see each other's face?" after which appropriate portions of the Scriptures were read in concert, and all again joined in singing-" Nearer my God to Thee," At the closing line of this beautiful hymn the host, Mr. Charles Phillips, arose and in a few very appropriate remarks, admirably suited to the occasion, spoke, with feelings at times too full for utterance, his gratitude to God for the opportunity of seeing and meeting his brothers and sisters upon this occasion, and expressed a desire that all would kneel and join with brother Philip in prayer, thanking God for his protecting care which had so tenderly followed them. Remarks were then made by Dr. T. D. Phillips, the oldest brother, with reference to the anticipated meeting they were then enjoying which he had been looking forward to during the past year; and, while much crowded the mind that he would like to speak of, he felt too much overcome with emotions of gratitude and love to speak them out. Williston Phillips, the next in years, followed with touching and feeling remarks appropriate to the hour, followed by Dr. A. P. Phillips, whose tender feelings were so touched by the hallowed influences of the hour, made touching mention of the present meeting and the bright hopes he had of a meeting above, where he felt was a member of his own family awaiting him, and the tender thread of life that was still holding together the living members of the same brought him into sweet sympathy with the associations of the hour and the thought of the Heaven beyond. Appropriate remarks were made by the uncle and aunt who had been so intimately known by the family from its earliest history, followed by the youngest brother, Z. Barney Phillips, who from his experiences during severe illness since the last meeting, spoke of the sweet faith which enabled him in the hours of near approach to the dark valley of death to penetrate its shadows and behold the beautiful sunlight beyond, with an earnest hope that all present might so live that when the final message should come all would have this sweet assurance and feel the presence of the dear Saviour in the last hour. Philip referred gratefully to the privileges he had and had improved of praying for each member of the family in every clime and country around the world, and felt the influences of his brothers' and sisters' prayers had helped him.

This closing the devotional exercises of the hour, the company, numbering thirty-seven adults and children, were escorted according to age to the pleasant office-rooms of Esq. Phillips adjoining the house, where were spread three tables with easy sittings for all, representing the three generations which were present. The rooms where these tables were so luxuriously spread were also most beautifully decorated with flowers and evergreens, and appropriate mottoes, the most beautiful and touching one being an excellent portrait of the father hanging entwined with evergreens and immortelles and just beneath these words, "We are all here." Being seated the blessing was sung, led by Phillip Phillips, and was in the following beautiful words which all joined in singing:

"Be present at our table, Lord, Be here and everywhere adored, These mercies bless, and grant that we May feast in Paradise with Thee,"

The magnificent and ample repast was now partaken of; and as the curtains of night began to draw their shadows about the beautiful hillsides and silvery lake the family separated, going to their homes and different fields of labor, but resolving to renew as often as possible these sweet reunions of earth.—Fredonia Censor.

- (IV.) Julia Theresa Phillips (No. 94:2.) married Sylvanus Dodge, postmaster and merchant in South Danvers, Mass. They removed to Nebraska in 1855, and to Council Bluffs, Iowa, in 1858. He died in the latter place, Dec. 23, 1871. Their son, N. P. Dodge, writes:
- "My mother left a comfortable home in Danvers, Mass., after she was fifty years old, went with her husband and children to the frontier of Nebraska and settled in Dodge Co., among the Pawnee Indians, the farthest white settlement at that time west of the Missouri river—no white settlement beyond until you reached Salt Lake City, one thousand miles. That was in civil engineer. The following brief outline of his eventful and remarkable eareer, with the letter of commendation from Gen. Sherman, the compiler is enabled to give through the kindness of N. P. Dodge, his brother.

His advantages for early education were quite limited, having only the benefits of common schools during the winters. Between the ages of ten and seventeen he worked summers at gardening and farming, and as a clerk in a general mercantile store. He occupied his leisure hours during these years in fitting himself for college, and in 1844 entered the Norwich Military University of Vermont. In 1851 he emigrated to the West and settled in Peru, Ill., as civil engineer. His settlement here was followed for two years by his participation in the locating and construction of several of the most important railroad lines of that region. He afterwards moved to Iowa City. In 1853 he made a reconnoisance west of the Missouri river, with a view of determining the location of the great Pacific Railroad of the future. Nov. 11, 1854, he removed to Council Bluffs, Iowa, where he was subsequently engaged in banking, real estate and mercantile business, and also organized the "Council Bluffs Guards."

At the breaking out of the war in 1861, after being sent by the government of Iowa to Washington, to arrange for the arming and equipment of Iowa troops, he raised the 4th Iowa Infantry regiment, of which he was commissioned Colonel, and also the 2d Iowa (Dodge's) Battery. In July, 1861, he marched with his command into Missouri, and was successful in operating against the Confederate forces which were then occupying that State. He reported with his regiment and battery in August, 1861, to General Frémont at St. Louis, and was soon after assigned to the command of the fourth brigade, and led the advance in the capture of Springfield, Mo. He took a prominent part in the celebrated battle of Pea Ridge, had three horses killed under him, and was seriously wounded. He was made Brigadier General for his gallant conduct in this battle. After recovering from his wounds he was designated to command the district of Columbus, Ky., and while holding the command, defeated several forces of the enemy, capturing Gen. Faulkner, near Island No. 10, and taking many prisoners. Late in 1862, having previously been given the command of the 2d division of the Army of the Tennessee, he was assigned to the command of the district of Corinth, Miss. He opened the campaign of 1863 by defeating the confederate forces under Forrest, Roddy, Fergueson and others. July 5th, 1863, he was assigned to the command of the left wing of the 16th Army Corps, with headquarters at Corinth, Miss. His forces made a raid on Grenada, Miss., in connection with a movement from Vicksburg, which resulted in driving the enemy south of that place, and capturing fiftyfive locomotives and a thousand cars.

While at the head of the 16th Army Corps, he joined Gen. Sherman in his march to Chattanooga, and in the Spring of 1864, was entrusted with the advance of the Army of the Tennessee. His corps took part in all the battles of Gen. Sherman's forces in the march from Chattanooga to Atlanta. In recognition of his services in this campaign, he was made Major General by the General Government. During the siege of Atlanta, his energetic and well timed action in moving his forces against the enemy under Hood, resulted in saving the stores and transportation of the Army of the Tennessee, and the army from a threatened condition. A few weeks after the battle of Atlanta, the army still besieging that city, Gen. Dodge received a gunshot wound in the forehead while standing in a rifle pit, on the skirmish line, superintending an advance. This was on the 19th of August, 1864. He soon after reported to Gen. Sherman for duty, but, owing to his physical condition, was ordered to the district of Vicksburg, and immediately transferred to the department of the Missouri by the President of the United States, relieving Gen. Rosecranz.

Missouri was overrun by Guerillas, and the national troops were in bad condition. He soon brought the army into good standing, effectually quelled the general Indian outbreak which just then threatened the whole frontier, and a vigorous fight was made against the Guerillas of Missouri, Arkansas and the Indian Territory. He received the surrender of 4000 of Kirby Smith's army in Missouri, and of the confederate general, Jeff. Thompson, with 8000 officers and men in Arkansas. At the close of the war, Gen. Dodge's command was made to include the whole Indian country of the West and North-west.

At his urgent request he was relieved of his command in June, 1866, and, on retiring from the army, was appointed Chief Engineer of the Union Pacific Railroad. He was nominated for Congress by the Republicans of the 5th Iowa district in 1866, and elected by a majority 2000 higher than had ever been given in that district. He declined a renomination and returned to push forward the construction of the Union Pacific Railroad. To this great work he bent all his energies. As chief engineer of the road, he made the plans for the great iron bridge which spans the Missouri River between Council Bluffs and Omaha, having charge of its construction till the time of his leaving the road as chief engineer. He supervised the relations of the road with the government, saw that the law was adhered to and the work conscientiously done, having no interest in the Construction Company, its contracts or profits.

In 1868 the Union Pacific Railroad was completed, and very soon afterwards Gen. Dodge became Chief Engineer of the Southern Pacific, now the Texas and Pacific Railroad, where he took control of the surveys and construction, and from July, 1872, to December, 1873, he completed the surveys along the thirty-second parallel of latitude from Sherman, Texas to the Pacific Ocean at San Diego, a distance of 1900 miles, and also put under construction 500 miles of the road. Since 1873 he has been engaged in the management of the Union Pacific and other western railroads.

General Dodge is a member of the Odd Fellows, and takes an interest in whatever develops his State. American society and the country at large. His characteristics are,—great energy, industry, and persistency in any work he undertakes. His honor and integrity are unimpeachable.

When contemplating a visit to Europe with his family, in the season of 1877, he received the following letter:

"Headquarters Army of the United States, Washington, D. C., April 20, 1877.

To U. S. Consuls, Abroad:

I have just learned that General G. M. Dodge is about going to Europe, where he may leave his children to school whilst he returns to America, where he is actively employed in railroad construction and management.

I take great pleasure in commending Genl. Dodge and family to the courtesy and politeness of all Americans, especially such as occupy official positions, because Genl. Dodge is one of the Generals who actually fought throughout the Civil War, with great honor and great skill, commanding a regiment, brigade, division, and finally a corps d'armée, the highest rank command to which any officer can attain.

He was with me in the West, especially in the Atlanta campaign where he was severely wounded, close to Atlanta, and I therefore think that he and especially his children, should experience the attention of all officers of a Government that might have perished had it not been for the blood of just such men as General Dodge.

With great respect, &c.,

W. T. SHERMAN,

General."

Deeply impressed with a sense of the great need of Christian work in every department of society, she actively sought to do good and to promote the personal comfort and spiritual well being of all whom she could reach. Self-denying and conscientious, but kind and courteous in her intercourse with all, she endeared herself to a circle of warm friends." She was in her usual place at the religious meeting of the Wednesday evening preceding her death, and again on Thursday with the ladies of the Benevolent Society, after which she was suddenly siezed with some affection of the brain, and alternating between delirium and consciousness, suddenly died Saturday noon. "She left as a precious legacy to her family and a large circle of friends, the fragrance of a pure and well-spent life in the service of the dear Master who has called her to his blessed home."

(I.) Walter Phillips, who was one of the John Mason colony that settled the "Sheepscott Plantation" about 1630, first appears in the early records in 1661, when he bought by deed of the Indians land at Damariscotta, Me.* In 1665 he was appointed clerk and recorder of a land commission for that part of Maine.

In 1680 the village of "Sheepscott Plantation" was burnt by the Indians, and Walter Phillips and others fled to Charlestown, Mass. In 1689 he was appointed by the General Court a tavern-keeper at Salem village, now Peabody.
